

Sixteen Patients Die In Fire That Sweeps Hospital

Historic Infirmary of Santo Spirito in Rome Damaged by Flames

SUFFERERS ARE IN PANIC

Sick in Chronic Ward Are Isolated by Collapse of Pavement

By Associated Press
Rome—A disastrous fire swept the historic hospital of Santo Spirito, one of the most ancient and picturesque charitable institutions in Rome, early Thursday. Collapse of the pavement isolated the chronic ward. Nurses and doctors quickly cleared the bedridden from one ward and in the next ward three of the patients crawled out. The electric lights were extinguished, adding to the horror of the situation.

As the immense wooden beams of the hospital fell there was a heavy grinding noise and the pavement collapsed, burying 20 of the chronic patients and rendering access to the wards impossible.

FIVE ARE INJURED

The Mayor and the Prefect hurried to the scene and assisted in claiming the terror-stricken patients who were saved and who lay on the floors, waiting to be moved to the surrounding institutions. Sixteen bodies already have been recovered, four other patients were badly burned and one dangerously injured.

The institution accommodates nearly 5,000 inmates and includes a hospital, lunatic asylum, foundling home and a refuge for aged and infirm persons.

The fire broke out shortly before midnight in the laundry. At first it seemed insignificant, but it spread rapidly to the neighboring wards, each containing 30 chronic sufferers or infirm patients who were sized with panic.

The hospital of Santo Spirito is situated on the bank of River Tiber, not far from the Vatican grounds. It was founded by Pope Innocent III, in the 12th Century, enlarged by Innocent IV, in the 13th and rebuilt under Sixtus IV, in the 15th.

The altar in the hospital chapel was designed by Andrea Palladio and is reputed to be the only work of this artist in Rome.

CROLL ON STAND IN SMALL TRIAL

By Associated Press
Waukegan, Ill. — Frederick W. Croll, vice president and treasurer of Armour and Company, one of the Chicago packers whose notes purchased from the Grant Park bank, formed the vehicle of the alleged conspiracy through which Gov. Len Small, Lieut. Gov. Fred B. Sterling, Vernon Curtis and the late Senator Edward C. Curtis are accused of defrauding the state out of millions in interest earnings, was called to the witness stand by the prosecution in the trial of the governor Thursday.

It was on $10,000,000 of the state money loaned to Chicago packers that the prosecution charges the governor and his alleged co-conspirators with collecting from five to eight percent interest and retaining the greater part of it.

All followed two attaches of the state treasurer's office—E. F. Trobaugh, warrant clerk and Edward Leck, securities clerk, on the stand.

ADMIT WOMEN TO CHURCH OFFICES

By Associated Press
Jacksonville, Fla.—Change in the constitution of the Southern Baptist convention to admit women to membership on the executive committee and various boards, was adopted Thursday after a spirited discussion. Dr. J. W. Porter, of Louisville, opposed the change, quoting the Apostle Paul's adjuration of women speaking in the church.

"We have started on the down grade," he declared, "and the time will come when a woman will preside over this convention."

Dr. Porter deprecated the "feminist movement" and said many leading workers of the women's missionary union were opposed to women taking part in the convention.

NO STRIKE IN PLANT OF VALLEY IRON WORKS

Personal difference of opinion relative to wages between employees and the Valley Iron Works company resulted in several of the men leaving the company's employ last Saturday and there is no strike in progress at the plant, it was explained Thursday. Several men left their work when the company could not meet their demands for an increase in pay. Other employees did not join in the demand and remained at work. The men are not organized and consequently there is no authorized strike at the plant.

RELIGION CURE FOR WORLD ILLS

Education, Statesmanship and Efficiency Have Failed, Says Churchman

By Associated Press
Des Moines, Iowa—Humanity, feeling its way in the shadows of the post-war years, is turning to religion for a cure for its ills, after education, statesmanship and efficiency all have failed, the Rev. Dr. Henry S. Swearingen, retiring moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, told the opening session of the 134th general assembly Thursday.

Dr. Swearingen opened the assembly proper after a week of preassembly conferences, with an impressive sermon, before a throng of church officials and visitors which jammed the Plymouth Congregational church. The Presbyterian faith is one well equipped, well suited, he said, to repair the spiritual havoc of the war.

Thursday afternoon at the coliseum the 608 commissioners to the general assembly from the 304 Presbyteries of 47 American synods, are to elect a new moderator for the ensuing year from their own number.

NEW INVENTION AID TO RADIO

By Associated Press
Chicago—A new type of radio receiving device without aerial, electrical power line connection or any assisting apparatus except several yards of wire tacked on the back of the cabinet which houses the set, was announced Thursday by B. F. Messner, radio engineer.

Adequate reception of signals is accomplished by a super-amplifier which, according to Mrs. Messner, magnifies the signal about 50 times more than the ordinary three tube amplifier, rendering it fully as audible as signals received with aerial antennae.

The receiving set is simplified, having a button to turn on the power, generated in small storage batteries also housed in the cabinet and a dial on which the wave lengths are marked. After adjusting the one dial to the wave length on which the operator wishes to receive, no other adjustments are necessary.

In a demonstration Thursday signals from KYW Broadcasting station, Chicago, were plainly received with the cabinet in an inside office of a large loan building.

"It would work just as well if the cabinet were buried 50 feet underground," Mr. Messner said.

LONG DEBATE ON TARIFF MEASURE

By Associated Press
Washington — Senate republicans and democrats predict Thursday that the tariff will be before the senate for a long time.

Formal notice was given by Senator Lodge, majority leader, that it was the intention of those in charge of the legislation to keep it under consideration practically continuously until it was passed, irrespective of the time required.

Announcement was made by Senator Underwood, minority leader, that it was the purpose of the democrats to debate the bill for weeks, not, he said, for the purpose of delay, but to let the country know what was in it.

AFTER HAYNES

The picture shows (above) Major Roy A. Haynes, United States Commissioner and (below) the Hon. John P. Hill, congressman from Maryland, who has demanded that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon remove Haynes from office, if the investigation proves that he approved a threat to burn the home of a convicted liquor law violator in the event of a repetition of his offense.

Hill quotes a bulletin given out by Haynes' office for newspaper publication in which Judge A. J. Curran of Pittsburg, Kas., is credited with uttering the warning to Charles Chausseur.

The congressman says this constitutes "official approval of a lynch law." If Haynes did not sanction the threat, then Hill wants removal of the subordinate official responsible for the bulletin.

Throl gave Madison as his home.

Surgeons in St. Mary hospital said Van Order's condition showed slight improvement during the night. They probed for the bullet, which is in the upper part of his lungs, but would not say whether an effort would be made to remove it.

U. S. ANXIOUS TO HELP AT NEW PARLEY

Ready to Send Representatives to Hague if Powers Modify Proposal

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Although on the surface it may seem as if the United States has again refused to cooperate with European powers, the truth is the government here is not only ready but anxious to participate in a conference this Russian affairs.

From the White House itself comes the information that the American government stands ready to send a representative to The Hague or anywhere else to discuss the Russian question and that if the powers will modify their proposal so as to remove features objectionable to this country, American cooperation can be assured.

DOOR IS OPEN

President Harding feels that the door is open for American help and wants it clearly understood. The department of state significantly enough went into details today in explaining what appeared to be a discrepancy between the informal statements of Ambassador Child in Genoa and the action of the American government in declining the invitation to The Hague conference. Cablegrams have reported the British public as amazed at the American refusal because Ambassador Child was reported as having promised American cooperation. The truth of the case is that when the powers approached Ambassador Child they told him the plan was to form a committee to study the Russian question. Mr. Child asked the department of state what would be its attitude and received a reply telling him the government here was sympathetic to the proposal and to send more information. Before he could go on the invitation of the powers with the specific proposals concerning The Hague conference were cable. This, of course, looked merely like a shifting of the Genoa conference itself to The Hague and again the American government felt that it would be involving itself in political controversies.

MORAL SUASION

But both President Harding and Secretary Hughes believe much can be accomplished if the Russian question is treated as an economic matter and if the Russians will respect private rights and property and thus afford a basis for economic dealings with other nations. The American reply is intended as a piece of moral suasion. It is being hoped that the powers will be able to persuade the Russians that the giving of American help will be seriously considered in Washington just as soon as economic basis can be achieved which will warrant the United States in extending its hand. This accounts for the speed with which the American reply was dispatched. The powers in conference at Genoa were expected to use the American note as a medium for further negotiation with the Russians. In official quarters here it is fully realized that the United States can exert a powerful influence on the direction of European affairs at the present moment and the responsibilities of the United States in the circumstances are by no means regarded with indifference. The readiness of President Harding to participate in a conference of the powers on Russian matters is in itself the first indication of an affirmative action in a European question. The United States does not wish to dictate the conditions and had hoped that the powers would reach an agreement to recognize Russia and that the United States would follow suit. The desire of France to follow America and the eagerness of the powers to have America express her opinions is fully appreciated and the significant thing is that the Harding administration says publicly it will enter a conference under certain conditions. These terms it is supposed will not be difficult to arrange and unless the Russians maintain an unalterable position the prospects may be said to look bright for American cooperation after all.

TEN OHIO MAYORS MAY LOSE PLACES

Columbus, Ohio.—Seats of at least ten Ohio mayors including Mayor George Oles of Youngstown, who were elected on independent tickets, have been made untenable by a recent decision of the state supreme court.

In deciding a contested councilmanic election in Cincinnati, the supreme court held that all independent tickets in municipalities of over 2,000 population are void, the general assembly never having enacted laws to make the constitutional provision for independent candidates operative.

It is not known yet whether actions will be brought against Mayor Oles and the other mayors affected by the decision. Oles is an independent candidate for governor.

STATE TO FIGHT ACTION TO KEEP RAIL RATES UP

Railroad Commission Prepares to Contest Injunction in Federal Court

Madison, Wis.—The railroad commission is preparing with Attorney General William J. Morgan to contest the action of the Chamber of Commerce of Menominee, Michigan, asking the U. S. district court to grant a permanent injunction restraining enforcement of the commission order reducing freight rates on coal shipped to points within Wisconsin.

In its answer to the plaintiff's complaint, the state will argue that there can be no relation between regulation of rates on a product shipped from without its borders.

Contention is made by the Michigan shippers that through its reduction, the Wisconsin commission has discriminated against out-of-state coal men who must pay higher rates on their products sent from point across the border in Michigan. They assert that this regulation is in violation of the interstate commerce provision of the federal constitution and void.

As a result of the reduction order on coal rates, which became effective May 10, interior points in Wisconsin had freight costs cut from a few cents to nearly $2 a ton. Shipments affected by the cut are all made from lake ports, while outside shippers are required to pay the rates set by the interstate commerce commission, which are considerably higher than the schedule set by the railroad commission.

It is on the basis of this difference in rates between the schedule established by the federal rate regulating body and the state, that the Michigan plaintiffs argue that discrimination is practiced, and the interstate commerce laws violated.

LAFOLLETTE TO MAKE LONG TOUR

Senator and Blaine Expect to Cover State in Election Speaking Trip

Madison, Wis.—Senator Robert M. La Follette was in Madison Thursday for a short visit to consider the political situation he is to face when he opens his campaign for re-election sometime during June.

Campaign plans are to be discussed by the senator with his political representatives in the state, preparatory to his return for a general speaking tour. No itinerary of this speaking tour has yet been decided on, but it is said that the office of Governor Blaine, that he and Senator La Follette expect to address gatherings in practically every community of the state during the three months when they will actively carry on their campaign for re-election.

It is said at his office that the present stay of Senator La Follette will be brief, probably not more than two or three days. Suggestion that he would call a general conference of so-called La Follette Progressive republicans, is discredited by his leaders here.

Temporary Pact Drawn By Powers At Genoa Parley

Commission to Examine Differences Between Russia and Other Nations

WILL REPORT AT HAGUE

Governments Not to Interfere in Internal Affairs of Other States

By Associated Press
Genoa—Sir Edward Grigg announced on behalf of the British delegation this afternoon, that for the address had been received from the United States government and that it seemed likely the United States would participate in The Hague meeting, at least until the scope of the meeting was better understood.

The agreement for a truce or temporary pact of non-aggression provides for the appointment of a commission by the powers to examine again the divergencies existing between the soviet government and other governments.

The questions to be treated by these commissions will comprise debts, private properties and credits.

REPORT AT HAGUE

The two commissions must be at The Hague on June 28.

To prevent the commissions in work peacefully, and also to reestablish mutual confidence, the soviet government and its allied republics on the one side, and the other governments on the other, pledge themselves to abstain from any act of aggression and subversive propaganda.

A pledge concerning propaganda will oblige the governments not to interfere in any way in the internal affairs of other states and not to assist financially or by any other means political organizations in other countries and will oblige them to suppress in their territory "any attempt to commit acts of violence in other states or aiming to disturb the territorial or political status quo."

The delegates made solemn affirmation that they would recommend the pact to their governments, and it seems likely it will be ratified generally as adopted today.

PACT ENDS FRIDAY

The final plenary session of the conference was fixed for 9 o'clock Friday morning and the conference will probably be concluded at about noon. The British have ordered a special train for early tomorrow afternoon and the other delegations are making plans for a hasty departure.

Accompanied by the judge the jury went to view the chickens at the county jail where Thompson's son said the hen would fly to any one's arm if called, and sing a song. Juror Cline decided to try it with the result that the jail sentence followed.

HOOVER MOVES TO HOLD PRICE OF COAL DOWN

Operators of Non-Union Mines Approve Method Presented by Secretary

By Associated Press
Washington—Secretary Hoover asked and obtained Thursday the approval of the leading operators of non union bituminous coal fields for a government plan of "getting the coal industry by voluntary action to put a stop point on increase of coal prices" during the period of the existing coal strike.

The plan which was approved by about 40 operators who met with Mr. Hoover, calls for the creation of a committee of operators with government and consumers representatives serving on it in each district where coal is being produced, through which all orders for coal will be cleared. A similar "peace" committee will be set up in Washington, and Mr. Hoover assured the coal operators that he had Attorney General Daugherty's opinion that such cooperative action to reduce and hold down prices in the public interest would be legal.

Practically all of the representatives of large producing companies not affected by the strike in the territory east of the Mississippi were present when Mr. Hoover, saying that the operators had been called for conference at the direction of President Harding, announced his plan. Most of the coal men called upon by Secretary Hoover to express their views on the general proposal, in addition to declaring their approval, declared that the production situation did not justify any great increase in coal prices, as ample supplies existed.

Federal and State Prohibition Officers Attack Liquor Sources

FIND STILL IN OPERATION

Gun Play Features One Raid—Police and Dry League Assist Raiders

Six arrests were made, three stills were confiscated and a large quantity moonshine and mash was taken by a squadron of state and federal prohibition enforcement officers in twelve raids Wednesday night and Thursday morning. The raids were made with cooperation of the Appleton police department and district officers of the Anti-Saloon league.

The following arrests were made: Louis Gitter, saloon at 1410 Second-st.

Peter Vanden Heuvel, saloon at 648 Appleton-st.

William Eisel, saloon, near Second-ave. and Lave-st.

Marvin Van Ryzin, Jr., 765 Foster-st., large washbottle, still, gallon of moonshine and several kegs used for moonshine.

Ben J. Overesch, 813 Foster-st., still in operation, 10 gallons of moonshine and 30 gallons of mash.

Joseph Overesch, 793 Foster-st., still and several jugs that apparently had been used for moonshine.

The three saloons with six others, were visited Wednesday evening. Sufficient evidence was found in the three instances to secure warrants and they were issued on Thursday.

The fourth ward stills were taken Thursday morning. Only three of the prohibition officers remained in the city to make those raids while nine departed Wednesday night.

The still at the Ben J. Overesch home was in operation when the raiders arrived. They experienced no difficulty in their work this morning.

Gun play, however, was in evidence in a raid on a home on Buchanan-rd. Wednesday night. The raiders found a quantity of moonshine in the premises. It then became known that the owner did not have a license to sell liquor and therefore his property could not be searched without a warrant and the party withdrew. In the meantime there was considerable of a scuffle and the owner of the property is alleged to have drawn a gun and threatened the raiders. In the fight he recovered possession of the bottle of moonshine and shattered it against a wall of the house, destroying the evidence.

No arrests were made there but an investigation is being made and developments soon may follow.

The prohibition officers arrived in Appleton Wednesday afternoon and were met by local police officers and by D. P. French, superintendent of Appleton district of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon league, and his associate, J. F. Keller. The raids, which had been carefully planned, were made immediately.

SCORES OF LOADS OF RUBBISH PICKED UP IN "CLEAN UP"

Householders Cooperate With City to Speed Up Disposal of Refuse

The results of Cleanup week are beginning to be noticed. Every day more than a dozen of large trucks loads of rubbish are dumped near the street department buildings.

On Monday, the first day that the trucks made the rounds, fourteen trucks were hauling away refuse. The way in which Appleton residents co-operated with the street department in depositing the refuse in containers and placing them on street curbs made work easy and swift progress was possible. About one and a half loads are being hauled per hour. This would not have been possible had the ashes and rubbish been deposited loosely upon the street. O. E. Weissgerber, city engineer, said:

One advantage in removing the rubbish besides making Appleton a cleaner city, is that it will expedite the filling of the city dump grounds. It was found, however, that very few streets were collected. For that reason Mr. Weissgerber offered the suggestion that Cleanup week be observed earlier in the season. The logical time to have the annual cleanup is about the middle of April when people are getting the spring cleanup fever, he said. In this way much of the refuse such as was lost to the city this year would be available for its dumping grounds.

The material gathered by the street department trucks presents a queer picture. Articles of every description ranging from hair pins to automobile bodies were collected. No one thinks any longer of using old automobile tires. Hundreds are to be found scattered over the dumping grounds. Mattresses, baby carriages, stumps, bicycles, stoves, tinware, trunks, boilers, and other articles running into thousands are thrown together.

Unrelenting War To Be Waged On Liquor Makers

"Committee of Fifteen" Praises
Prim for His Crusade Against Booze

Unrelenting war on illicit liquor manufacture and traffic in Appleton has been declared by "The Committee of Fifteen," organized last fall for the purpose of stamping out violation of the liquor traffic. It was announced in a statement issued by the committee Thursday following raids which resulted in several arrests. The statement also pays a tribute to George T. Prim, chief of police, for the effort he has made to put "moon shining out of practice." It also stated that the prohibition law in Appleton is not a failure.

Following is the statement issued Thursday:

"To the Citizens of Appleton:

"The raid made last night on law breakers, who have been selling liquor here, is not an isolated attack on this city by officers from a distance.

"Since last summer a group of citizens who believe in upholding the law, and protecting our homes, has been looking below the surface into conditions in Appleton and vicinity. They have not depended on hearsay. Competent people have quietly accumulated evidence and the raid of last night is one of the results.

"This group are just plain citizens and tax payers, including all shades of religious and political opinion, both men and women, both employers and men labor men. They have no desire for publicity but they are entirely willing to be known as champions of American laws and American homes. They have felt that this statement would prevent misunderstanding of their action, and would further the cause of proper law enforcement.

"Last autumn they formed a simple organization called the Committee of Fifteen, which has since grown to include a much larger number. Of this committee Frank J. Harwood is chairman, Rev. W. J. Fitzmaurice, vice chairman, W. S. Smith, secretary, treasurer. Among the other members are: J. P. Frank, John Trautmann, G. E. Buchanan, Dr. Eliza M. Culbertson, J. G. Reschbach, Fred S. Aylsworth, G. W. Jones, Lee C. Easty, George F. Werner, Rev. J. A. Holmes, A. F. Tuttle, Mrs. John McFarlan, Rev. H. E. Peabody, Benjamin Rehan, Samuel Plautz, H. W. Russell, Rev. F. L. Schreckenbach.

"They have become convinced that those who would like to discredit the prohibition law are developing a propaganda through the press and in conversation, of reports both true and false, to make it appear that the law is a failure. They have found that in Appleton at least the law is not a failure, though there are too many criminals among us, as the raid of last night goes to prove.

"The particular the Committee has found increasing evidence of the efficiency of chief Prim, though he has not a few detractors, mainly because he is efficient.

"The committee ventures to believe that if specially well informed citizens are enforcing law enforcement in the community and it intends to remain so in the future with increasing thoroughness. It aims to know who is breaking our laws, also who is enforcing them, and who is not enforcing them, and why.

"It has the cooperation of many men and women beyond its own membership and relies much on this cooperation. It has no doubt that it is acting in harmony with the sentiment of a majority of our voters.

"The committee has found that now as formerly, the sale of liquor makes the rendezvous for vice of all kinds, gambling, drunkenness, licentiousness and the rest, and that the dirty trail of the dollar is over the whole business, a menace to our homes, our schools and to good citizenship.

"The committee hopes that the people of Appleton, since they have good reason for encouragement will stay quickly and resolutely on the job of making this the cleanest, most prosperous and pleasant town to live in, in the whole state."

COUNCIL PROVIDES BAND AND $150 FOR DECORATION DAY

Toy Company Wants Taxes Re-bated—Would Go Away
With Red Tape

In response to a request of patriotic societies of Appleton, the city council at its regular meeting Wednesday night presided over by H. R. Beske, president of the council, voted to make Memorial day one of the band concert dates. Just what part the band will play on the Memorial Day program was left to the finance committee to work out. At the same time an appropriation of $150 was made to help defray expenses incidental to observance of the day.

Fred F. Wettengel appeared for the Toy Company of America and asked for a rebate on its taxes. He invited the council to inspect the plant, its output, and the extensive repairs made necessary by damage from high water to test the worth of the request. The company, he said, though enjoying a good business, has found it necessary to apply to the railroad rate commission for permission to issue more capital stock in order to establish the concern and place it on paying basis. The petition met with stern opposition on the part of several city fathers. Alderman C. F. Smith wanted to know how it was possible not to make enough profit if the company has orders for a year in advance. He also asked what the company would do with the new capital. The question finally was referred to the finance committee.

DON'T WANT SIDEWALK
A remonstrance submitted by six Appleton residents protesting the building of sidewalks on four blocks of Calumet street, recently ordered, was referred to the street and bridge committee. It was stated that the dwelling places were too scattered on this section of the street and that some of the signers of the petition to have the walk built were persons residing outside of Outagamie county. The city engineer was requested to defer work on the street until the committee had opportunity to investigate the validity of the protest.

The office hours of the city clerk's office were set at 8:30 to 5:30, except Saturdays during the summer period of May 1 to Oct. 1, when the office will close at noon. The extended half hour was designated to give working people better opportunity to visit the office.

TOO MUCH RED TAPE
Action was requested by the city engineer to do away with some of the red tape in issuing permits for use of streets. Considerable delay is involved in the committee and council method. Mr. Weissgerber was given authority to issue temporary permits. The police and license committee also was instructed to devise a speedier method of issuing temporary licenses. Mr. Weissgerber was appointed weed commissioner for the coming season.

A petition submitted by August Brandt for support of Brandt park, also a petition of St. Elizabeth hospital for a storm sewer on its property were denied. A damage claim of $200 of Anton Stadler for dirt dumped on his property was tabled. A petition signed by 20 residents of Richmond st. calling attention to flooded basements and asking for a storm sewer was referred to the committee on streets and bridges. So was the petition of residents on South Vine st. between North Main and North Sts.

1,100 TINY CHICKS ARRIVE IN MAILED

Rural Carriers Stumped by Arrival of 12 Crates of White Leghorns

The largest shipment of day old chicks this year was received at the Appleton postoffice Wednesday. Ten boxes each containing 100 chicks and two boxes of 50 each, or a total of 1,100 chicks traveled de luxe via the government's parcel post. All appeared to be in a lusty and healthy condition, judging from their clamor for food. The entire shipment consisted of White Leghorns and came from three Michigan cities.

The burden of the delivery rested with John Freude, rural carrier on route 2, who took ten of the cartons, all to one patron on his route. Carriers A. J. Fetting and C. Riesenweber took the other two boxes. Carrier Freude debated for some time how he was to deliver 1,100 chicks safely to their owner. They were finally strapped securely above the automobile and covered to protect them against the wind.

Chicks have been shipped through here at the rate of about 100 a day since the latter part of March. According to the postal regulations, they must be shipped immediately after hatching. They are not to be fed or watered in transit. Many of these come from a considerable distance, some from Kansas, and but very few fail to reach their destination alive.

TOO MUCH FIGHTING IN SYRIA TO VISIT IT NOW

Radio Freije, who was intending to leave on a several months' visit to his old home in Syria the latter part of the month has decided to postpone the trip until conditions in his native country become more settled. Considerable fighting is going on at present between French and Syrian soldiers according to Syrian newspapers, and Mr. Freije has written to his brother to learn the true situation. If favorable reply is received he will leave here early in September.

INDUSTRIAL LAW AUTHORITY WILL TALK HERE FRIDAY

Public Invited to Hear Address
by E. E. Witte in Trade School Friday

E. E. Witte, former secretary of the Wisconsin Industrial commission who has recently been appointed head of Wisconsin Reference library will lecture Friday evening in the vocational school on the subject of "Public Interest in Industrial Management." Mr. Witte comes under the auspices of the soldier bonus class in industrial management conducted in Appleton vocational school.

During the last 26 years there have been a great many laws placed upon the statute books regulating Wisconsin industries and it has been difficult for manufacturers and business men to keep pace with them. Probably no man in the state is more qualified to speak on the state's relation to industry than Mr. Witte. His work as secretary of the industrial commission has given him an opportunity not only to know the details of the laws but to observe their operation and effect upon industry.

The public is invited to the lecture. Invitations are being sent out to business men in the city. Opportunity will be given at the close of the lecture for discussion and questions. A large crowd is expected to attend the last session of the industrial management class.

Reception—George Packard, A. H. Wickesberg, F. F. Wettengel, Sick—John Stevens, Walter Storch and James Wood.

Side Curtains On Autos Cause Of Accidents

Autoists who use side curtains on their cars are considered as poor risks by accident insurance companies. Local insurance men have discovered this in recent reports which are being sent out by their home offices.

It is shown that the major portion of accidents at railroad and street car crossings has involved automobiles which are enclosed with the curtains, especially in the winter time. The driver may see and hear distinctly when his machine is open, but curtains obscure his view.

Motormen on electric lines and railway engineers invariably warn their brakes and prepare for quick stop at crossings when they see a curtained car, the reports say.

MOST OF MINES IN NORTH STILL ARE IN IDLENESS

It is generally understood here the mines in northern Wisconsin and Michigan are all in operation, but such is not the case according to a letter Frank Nemacheck received from his son, Frank Nemacheck, Jr., who is connected with one of the largest mining companies at Bessemer.

The letter stated the mines are not only closed but very little ore is moving. Of the 900 employees less than 10 per cent are working and on May 1 their wages were cut to $2 per day. Prior to that time they had been receiving $4 per day for three days' work per week.

Helpful Hair Hints

You can easily clean your head of dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and beautify it, if you use Parisian Sage.

A lady visiting friends says "Parisian Sage is the best thing I ever used to make my hair wavy, lustrous and abundant. It also keeps away all dandruff and immediately stops itching scalp."

This inexpensive invigorator is sold by Schlitz Bros Co. and at all good drug and toilet counters. Be sure you get the genuine Parisian Sage (Giroux's) as that has the money back guarantee printed on every bottle. adv.

BUNCOING THE FARMER

Senator Capper, Republican of Kansas, and chairman of the senate agricultural bloc, has a clear perception of the purpose and effects of the American valuation plan in connection with the pending tariff revision. Since the senate finance committee abandoned the American valuation plan in favor of foreign valuation, there has been a highly active propaganda in favor of the former. It has been circulating the country on the ostensible benefits that would accrue from domestic valuation. Mr. Capper says this propaganda has been launched by those who "desire excessively high protective duties on manufactured articles."

This has been perfectly clear all along to those who have taken an unprejudiced view of tariff revision. The outstanding fact about American valuation is that it will conceal the true amount of protection accorded. That has been one of the principal objections to the scheme, and there is no doubt that it originated as a cloak for the levying of excessive duties. Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee, who with other extreme protectionists and standpatters evolved the plan, condemns it by his own advocacy of its merits. Every one who knows Mr. Fordney's tariff views and record knows that he wants to erect a tariff wall of the maximum possible height, and that anything which will contribute to this has his hearty indorsement.

The American valuation plan offered an ideal means for raising the tariff above what the schedules actually represented it to be. Mr. Capper in discussing the tariff bill brought this fact strikingly to the attention of the senate, showing that out of some five hundred item-invarious schedules the rates concealed in the original house bill were from twenty-five to one hundred per cent higher than in the senate bill, and it is to be borne in mind that the senate bill carries rates on the average higher than those in the notorious Payne-Aldrich act. Mr. Capper went on to show that if American valuation were used to conceal undue increases in rates it would be at the expense of the farmer, because it would not apply to his products, the rates on which would be specific and not based on value, while its use would increase the price of many products which the farmer uses.

Not only does the proposed tariff bunco the farmer in the matter of prices and production costs, but as Senator Capper further pointed out, it would limit the exportation of agricultural products in exchange for manufactured goods bought in foreign countries. Many of our agricultural products are on an export basis. A tariff which prevented customers abroad finding markets in the United States would necessarily reduce their buying power, and in the general curtailment of commerce the farmer would be the first to suffer. Only by the marketing of his surplus production can he realize the highest prices for what he has to sell. If there is no market in which to sell it, this surplus becomes a drug and a price demoralizer.

No single class of American citizens has been more fooled by politicians on the subject of the tariff than the farmer, and if the present scheme of tariff revision advanced by the ultra-protectionist goes through he will be victimized as never before. The condition of foreign credits and the concentration of a top-heavy gold reserve in the United States absolutely demand that we make it possible for Europe to sell to us if we expect Europe to buy from us. It is the only way we can restore Europe's banking credit, and incidentally recuperate our national prosperity in a large way.

MINORITY OPINION IN RODD CASE

Justice Doerfler in his dissenting opinion filed in the Rodd-Christ case, Oneida county, holds that the contempt for which Christ was ordered imprisoned by the circuit court was criminal and therefore pardonable. The majority of the supreme court holds that the contempt was civil, and therefore unpardonable. The reasoning of the majority appeals to common sense and is to be accepted as a sound view of the case.

It is perfectly clear that if the courts were robbed of the power involved in the Christ case they would be unable to give protection to life and property in cases of actual or threatened violence. Justice Doerfler says the pardoning power is designed to be used where "forgiveness of an offense is contemplated to produce the public welfare." We wonder if the justice actually believed that that was the purpose of Governor Blaine when he sought to free Christ on the eve of the expiration of his sentence?

The justice furthermore says the pardoning power "has not been abused in the history of the state. This is a broad statement. Citizens of Wisconsin who believe in the integrity and security of the courts and in the protection of life and property against mob violence will disagree with the esteemed justice, for it is their view that Governor Blaine's interference with the authority of the circuit court of Oneida county was an abuse of the pardoning power, arbitrary, unjustified and dangerous. Fortunately, for the stability of our institutions, the majority of the supreme court has held that the governor had no constitutional right to so abuse that power.

GIRLS 50 YEARS AGO

It is disheartening to read, in the Saturday Review, an English weekly, this account of the English girl as printed in the same periodical in 1868:

We thought we had the pick of creation in this fair young English girl of ours. This was in the old time, and when English girls were content to be what God and nature had made them. Of late years we have changed the pattern, and have given to the world a race of women as utterly unlike the old ideal as if we had created another nation altogether.

The girl of the present is a creature who does her hair and paints her face as the first articles of her religion; whose whole idea of life is plenty of fun and luxury, and whose dress is the object of such thought and intellect as she possesses. Her main endeavor in this is to outvie her neighbors in the extravagance of fashion.

The girl of the period has done away with such moral stiffness as consideration for others or regard for counsel and rebuke. It was in the old time, and when English girls were content to be what God and nature had made them. Of late years we have changed the pattern, and have given to the world a race of women as utterly unlike the old ideal as if we had created another nation altogether.

Is it possible that girls were as bad as that, in the supposedly staid and respectable Victorian period? And if they were, what about the American girls of the same period? The characterization, if no date were given, would be taken as applying specifically to the flapper of this degenerate age. Was the present flapper's grandmother as unwomanly as she is painted in this unflattering account? Or has there been really no deterioration at all? Is it just that the old fogies of every age, losing their perspective as they advance in years, mistake changes in manners for changes of morals, and imagine all the demoralization they preach about?

TODAY'S POEM

By Berton Braley

THE FLAPPER

She isn't afraid of the old Taboos,
Of dead conventions and ancient views,
She takes the world with a peppy grin
And a confident tilt to her dimpled chin;
And the old heads wag and the old tongues clatter,
But she doesn't care for the stuff they chatter,
She knows her actions are being played
But not for a minute is she afraid!

She isn't afraid of the chaperes of wrath,
The frowning idols that line her path,
Her eyes are open, and though she makes Mistakes enough—they are her mistakes,
And not the blunders of "older heads";
Filled full of cautious and doubts and dread;
Not always wisely her game is played,
But never for a moment is she afraid!

She shocks the elders with joyous verve
Till they quiver in every nerve,
But altogether I think she's right,
Will do as well as her parents did;
Better perhaps, for most must confess
Her elders tangled things more or less;
Under the banners of youth arrayed,
She faces the universe—unafraid!

URIC ACID IN THE MIND

Well, as I was saying at quitting time yesterday, it is my crystallized opinion that an increase in the quantity of uric acid in the blood and its uses does not signify any particular disease state, uric acid cannot be considered a cause of any disease condition, but a marked increase in the quantity of this substance in the blood (above the two grains per ounce of blood in health) merely points toward some impairment of metabolism, that is to say, some slowing down of the combustion process in all the tissues of the body which constitutes life.

It is regrettable true that deposits of monosodium urate, a salt of uric acid, are found in and about the joints in cases of gout. But still the found in persons who have no gout and no illness whatever.

From the unfortunate association of uric acid with gout, which is actually a rare disease, has sprung the popular fallacy that uric acid is somehow responsible for the various joint diseases which masquerade under the title of "rheumatism." This fallacy has led to the consumption of a vast quantity of medicine, mineral water and supposedly uric acid free food, of course, with disappointing results.

When "dieting" does bring any relief or improvement in a disease condition imaginatively attributed to "uric acid," the benefit is usually due to restriction in the total quantity of food consumed, which lessens the load on metabolism and enables the system to catch up somewhat in excretion. And this very purpose is more certainly arranged by a reduction in the consumption of carbohydrates—starches and sugars.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

For Private Secretaries Only
Please send me any pamphlets you may have which you think would interest me. I am a private secretary. (R. Blank)

Answer—Your mode of signature might confuse some doctors but I know at once that you are a member of the shemale sex. Yet even that revelation doesn't help me much. If you sit in my chair you've got to tell me whether you want a shave or a hair-bob.

To Settle a Tea Fight

At a club meeting to be held shortly I am to answer the following question: "Does the modern custom of putting infants and young children off by themselves at stated intervals, to go to sleep, and refusing to comfort or mother them while they wait with loneliness and fright, tend to induce nervous troubles among children?" Will you kindly help me out?—(H. G.)

Answer—I should say no.
Cataract
I am a blacksmith and have a cataract in the left eye. Two eye doctors advised against operation, but said if the right eye should develop the same trouble I should be operated on right away. Would my work account for it?—(K. A. W.)

Answer—Close regard of a bright light is a frequent cause of cataract. Working over a frequently developed cataract. Flasher of electric light of great brilliancy from short circuiting are a common cause.

Tuberculosis

Can a person have tuberculosis when it does not show up in several sputum examinations? The only signs of it are a persistent cough, rapid heartbeat and short breath.—(M. K.)

Answer—Yes. The germs appear in the sputum only after tuberculosis has been present for some time.

Thirty Off for Good Behavior

I've been behaving better since I wrote you. I am 67 inches tall and I now weigh 150. I was asked to lose weight for your amusement. The reduction of weight is the least of the benefits I have received. I have all kinds of ambition now and feel like a fighting cock ready for the ring. When you say most of us eat too much for our own good you're dead right!—(T. C.)

Cigarettes Versus Pipe

Please tell me whether cigarette smoking is more harmful than a pipe—that is, if I use the same tobacco for making the cigarettes.—(K. R.)

Answer—So far as I know the effect is the same.

The Making of a Neurotic

My daughter, aged 13, stands at the head of her class in school, but has a tendency to worry at bedtime after she has finished studying for the night. She says she can't help thinking some of us are going to die right away and she can't get to sleep. (J. H. W.)

Answer—A girl of 13 should not be made to study at night. She needs some wholesome play or diversion. It is a shame to fill the child's mind overflowing with books and school tasks.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

FEDERAL BUDGET SYSTEM A SUCCESS

The publication of the report of what Gen. Chas. Dawes has accomplished in initiating the Federal Budget System has been well received by the editorial opinion of the Country. There are few exceptions in the chorus of praise for the work, so far as it has gone, although certain editors are in no way backward in indicating attention to the deficit threatening for the coming fiscal year. There is agreement, however, that the budget system has been well worth trying and it is pointed out that the executive departments having led the way, Congress must follow their example.

The very fact that he cited specific facts and figures was an indication that Gen. Dawes knew what he was talking about, the Baltimore AMERICAN (Rep.) points out, asserting that he "has not only shown that his savings really are savings, but he has shown that the government has been converted from an instrument for spending money to an instrument for conducting business." Admitting that the "real savings are small and illusory," the New York GLOBE, (Ind.) believes that "General Dawes has done a task of co-ordination which long needed to be undertaken." His entire performance has been so good that the Springfield REPUBLICAN, (Ind.), demands that, inasmuch as "the reform in the fiscal affairs of the government has only begun, Gen. Dawes ought not to retire at the end of one year as head of the budget bureau, as he stipulated when he accepted the office. He is so obviously the man for the place, and the task he has undertaken is so colossal, that the public interest requires him to stay on the job." The country should be grateful for the report which is replete with interesting information.

The Washington POST, (Ind. Rep.) believes, as "the vastness of the government's operations, and the variety of activities affected, make the report a 'human interest' document of exceptional attractiveness." In addition the Washington STAR points out that "the achievement in economy is even more creditable than appears on the face of the showing for it was made without in any way impairing the efficiency of the government. The President and his cabinet have been able to distinguish between the vital and the unvital, parsimonious and in financial statesmanship that is the ultimate of wisdom."

The saying, in the view of the Pittsburgh DISPATCH, (Ind.), "is near enough to Senator Aldrich's potential saving of a million a day to justify the expectation in the budget." And in the opinion of the New York POST, (Ind.), "so far as a budget system can effect economy, economy has been affected." With these facts established it is the suggestion of the New York TRIBUNE, (Dem.), that "the budget system is already amply vindicated but it will take more than one year for it to work out its full worth. It remains for Congress to do its part to cooperate with the Executive, and this is what, up to date, Congress has not been doing." Agreeing that it is up to Congress as the Buffalo NEWS asserts "if Congress goes on in the old way, the money saved through departmental efficiency will count for nothing. There must be reformation all down the line, or reductions never will reach the taxpayers."

The entire report brings a feeling of "prideful satisfaction," the Detroit NEWS, (Ind.), believes, because "it is the plain, unadorned truth which ought to be proclaimed incessantly, that the humanity, cured of its madness as sometimes a drunkard is cured by satiating him with wine will at last understand the mad folly of war."

"We must get out of this chaos at all costs. The great idea of the United States of Europe is not new. Poets sang its praises formerly. Victor Hugo made magnificent verses on the subject. It is an old idea but it is by no means ridiculous. On the contrary, it appears to high-minded people the logical end of a series of pitiable but inevitable steps which have led us to the present state of affairs. It is the only solid and durable system of peace, on condition that peace is regulated to its proper place. The art of becoming European is only in its rudiments. All the greater reason why we should make haste and learn it."

"I know the objection. War is a law of humanity. Men are made to fight each other continually. But not to love one another and to be united in the United States of Europe, what would become of each individual country?"

"I have nothing to say against countries, I love my own passionately. I even esteem them necessary; they have their history, their traditions and their special genius. We must maintain them but we must bring them to perfection."

"At the present moment they are all upset, like anti-bills in a distracted agitation moving in all directions after the storm. Everybody's house is upside down. They bristle with barriers and are affronting themselves behind these barriers, formidable customs barriers which prevent goods as well as ideas and especially fruitful understanding from penetrating. And on these ramparts, armed men, chauvinists of all kinds stalk about with a threatening air."

"But let us hasten to put all these houses straight, and to get each in its place. If the Geneva conference may have helped, ever so little let me be grateful to it. In another place, in another way we will go still one step further, we will do better next time. And next day or another we shall begin really to understand that the interests of each country are in perfect harmony with the interests of humanity. And we shall gladly become Europeans while remaining resolutely French."

"I told you my country a heart which overflows."

And the more I am French the more I feel myself human."

Paris—Writing in LE RADICAL, on the art of being a European, Jean Philip, a member of the French Senate, says:—

"This is a very difficult art to judge by the Geneva experiences. In that congress of nations assembled to attempt the reconstruction of Europe and to save the cart, up to its axles in mud, deeds often contradicted words or only followed them from afar."

"The enthusiasm of the first day was soon over! On the second everybody woke up from his dream."

"We had set out for Geneva with the preiseworthy intention of becoming European, but suddenly we were no longer English, French, German, Italians, Japanese and Russians. Our interests clashed. The broadness of our views had recoiled as well as the generosity of our hearts. Each nation was thinking of itself, was working for itself, and was regulating its external conduct according to internal necessities, and the German disloyalty—let us keep Mr. Lloyd George's word—adding to the Moscow impudence, the Geneva humbug."

"The whole conference seemed a failure. But although Geneva has not given the results which some hoped for, it is only a proof that too much was expected. Here, no more than at other conferences were we to see water dashed out of the rock after having been struck by Mr. Lloyd George. On the contrary we only saw men, simple human beings, with contradictory desires, with contradictory passions and foreign conclusions, in attitudes which sometimes had nothing to do with the subject."

"For this reason many are pessimistic and are lamenting about what they term a terrible failure."

"It seems to me, however, that this is exaggerated. We have only to look realities in the face, without illusions but with courage."

"We have plunged the world into a state of chaos. It has brought Europe materially and morally to the verge of ruin. This is the plain, unadorned truth which ought to be proclaimed incessantly, that the humanity, cured of its madness as sometimes a drunkard is cured by satiating him with wine will at last understand the mad folly of war."

"We must get out of this chaos at all costs. The great idea of the United States of Europe is not new. Poets sang its praises formerly. Victor Hugo made magnificent verses on the subject. the Harding administration as the great champion of economy until they know what it is coming next. There is such a thing as saving at the pigst and taxing through the bung-hole." While this may be so the Chicago POST, (Ind.), characterizes the report "as the most cheering government document which we have seen since the completion of the Pacific treaties. The sum total of result is a forced saving thru efficiency of a quarter billion dollars and a total executive saving of almost a billion. In our opinion Gen. Dawes has proved it and the doubting Democrat can cease to be skeptical." All this has been accomplished, the Green Bay PRESS GAZETTE (Ind.) points out, in the face of the fact that "it has not been an easy matter to introduce economy in Washington. Only the utmost resolution could have succeeded in the program of retrenchment and the public will not be slow to give credit for this achievement where credit is due." While there still are flaws to be corrected the Minneapolis TRIBUNE, (Rep.) says, "the budget system is discovering weak spots, the existence of which may be ascribed to lackadaisical administrative habits of the past. We are well on our way out of the slough of inefficiency and it ought to be easier to go the rest of the way out."

Try The "Impossible"

H. Ensor, expert at raising sunken ships or salvaging their cargoes by divers, says the Lusitania is so far under water that each square foot of her is subject to a pressure of 10 tons. If so, the giant steel ship probably is crushed like an eggshell.

Big weight to lift. Pressure would crush a diver to a pulp.

These trifling obstacles do not worry ambitious men who will sail May 25 from Philadelphia, to attempt to salvage millions of dollars worth of gold believed to be in the Lusitania.

Gold is the universal and eternal lure. Seeking it, men admit no impossibilities. Will the salvagers succeed? Maybe not. But it is only by attempting the seemingly impossible that men occasionally attain exceptional success. Confidence is nine-tenths of victory.

COULD HARDLY STAND AT TIMES

Hips, Back and Legs would Have That Tired Ache

Everett, Washington.—"For several years I have had trouble with the lowest part of my back and my hips and my legs would ache with that tired ache. I could hardly stand on my feet at times. I was always able to do my work although I did not feel good. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and having heard several praise it I decided to try it. I feel first-rate at the present time. It has done wonders for me and I keep it in the house right along. I always recommend it to others who are sick and ailing."—Mrs. J. M. SUBBERT, 4032 High St., Everett, Washington.

To do any kind of work, or to play for that matter, is next to impossible if you are suffering from some form of female trouble. It may cause your back or your legs to ache, it may make you nervous and irritable. You may be able to keep up and around, but you do not feel good.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women. It is especially adapted to relieve the cause of the trouble and then these annoying pains, aches and "no good" feelings disappear.

TRY KALOGRAM IF YOU HAVE A BAD
"CAMERA FACE"

Enterprising New York Girl Portrays "Character" in Drawings

By Marian Hale
Some faces respond kindly to photography. Others do not.

But if you are like the majority of us—your photographs always look pitifully like yourself instead of like the glorious creature you would be if your thoughts could make you so—do not lose heart.

For the fault lies not with you but with the camera.

Tours is a personality of many complexes, all of which no mere machine can catch.

You need a more personal medium.
Perhaps you will be more truthfully portrayed by a kalogram. A kalogram suggests your personality, but does not tell everything about you face.

Kalograms are the specialty of Julie Brown, New York artist.

With the letters of your name and five minutes' conversation with you, Miss Brown has all the material she needs. But sometimes the composition takes several days.

Kalograms got their start this way.
One night Miss Brown read that a man attempted suicide.

Investigation revealed the dependent person was an artist who painted soul portraits in the natural colors.

Evidently soul painting was no easy task, or had been highly unreminerative, for after a few attempts the artist had been ready to end it all.

Miss Brown, felt no urge to follow in his footsteps, but she did share his ideal—to paint something besides features. She had always believed personalities were more interesting than the conventional assortment of eyes and chins.

"The details of a face always escape me, but the personality makes a deep impression," she explains.

"I remember people's like and dislikes and their fads and forget how they looked."

"So I began to experiment with the drawing of a personality, and finally conceived the idea of drawing it with the letters of the name.

"Up to this time my particular branch of art had been the making of silhouettes. I had made one for practically every actor and actress in New York and I made thousands in France for soldiers.

"I tried out the kalogram idea on the theatrical people, and they liked it. They used kalograms on their stationery and for book plates and pictures.

"Then, quite unexpectedly, the idea became very popular, and now everyone wants a kalogram. For stationery some people like a convenient arrangement like the one I made for Anne Morgan.

"When Molla Bjursted, the tennis champion, married and became Molla Mallory, she changed her kalogram as well as her name. Now she has one for professional and one for home use.

"Marion Campbell isn't a professional woman, but she is an enthusiastic motorist. So her kalogram indicates that."

When I left Miss Brown she was making a kalogram for Ed Wynne.

"Now there's a real problem," she admitted, "trying to make a picture out of seven letters—but give me time, I'll get it."

Has Machine To Use Sky For A Billboard

New York — Elmer A. Sperry, inventor, says he can plaster posters and placards all over the sky.

And he'll do it, too, if he can find enough advertisers who want to boost their wares in that way.

The stunt can be accomplished, Sperry says, by the use of a powerful searchlight that will illuminate the sky with rays that can be seen 140 miles.

Sperry's held the secret for 30 years.

"At the world's fair in 1893 I threw a picture of President Grover Cleveland on the sky," he says.

"One day while I was away an enterprising advertising agent bribed one of my men to project the name of a popular soap in the same way.
That was the start of sky advertising."

YOUR BABY IN HOT WEATHER
Prevent Summer Sickness

A BABY'S GREATEST BLESSING IS A WISE MOTHER

BY MRS. MAX WEST
Late of the United States Children's Bureau

As summer comes, conscientious mothers all over the country begin to think with dread of the dangers to which their babies will be exposed in the long hot days of July and August.

They are acquainted with that alarming "summer peak" of infant deaths, put out by the health departments in large cities every summer, which show how critical a season this is for babies, especially for those who are already somewhat under par.

It is true that hot weather is hard on a baby, especially if the heat is protracted, but it is also true that with good care a baby may be safely brought through the hottest weather in the great majority of cases.

Year by year, that dreadful "summer peak," with its mounting curves ever rising through the six hottest weeks, is being cut down. It is nothing like as high now as it was 10 years ago, and each year it is getting lower.

Two things are mainly responsible for this steady reduction in the number of babies who give up their little lives every summer. These are the better knowledge of the dangers of impure milk, with increase knowledge of how to keep it clean and pure, and the constantly growing number of mothers who have learned the principles upon which good baby care depends.

In practically every large city, and in some smaller ones, it is now possible to buy "certified" milk, which, in itself, is a great safeguard for the baby. But quite as important, if not more so, is the fact that it is now possible everywhere for all mothers to learn how to protect their babies from the special hot-weather dangers, by attending infant welfare centers, by using some of the many good pamphlets available, or by the direct guidance of physicians and nurses.

The mother should realize that the time to fortify herself with such advice and instruction is now, before the heat and the possible emergency are upon her.

To prevent summer diarrhea is a far better thing even than to bring the baby safely through it, for it takes a good while to restore a child to perfect health even after a mild case, while it may take months, if the illness has been severe and prolonged.

Ways For Chicken

CHICKEN is a light meat, suitable for warm weather. It is nutritious and easily digested.

From March to September, young chickens are best and cheapest.

A spring chicken is determined by the smoothness of its legs and feet.

The softness of the cartilage at the end of the breastbone and the smoothness and thinness of the skin and the many pin feathers.

"Broilers" are young chickens usually weighing about one and one-half pounds.

BOILED CHICKEN
Have chicken dressed and split by the butcher. Reserve the liver, gizzard and heart for giblet sauce.

Wash chicken through several waters and let stand one hour in cold salted water. Drain and wipe with a clean towel. Dip in melted butter, being sure that every spot is well oiled. Put in a dripping pan and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven. The oven must be very hot when the chicken is put in. If it browns too fast reduce the heat for the last 20 minutes of baking. The chicken should be put in the pan with the flesh side up.

The pan should be well oiled, but no water should be put in the bottom.

FRIED CHICKEN Clean and draw chicken and cut in pieces for serving. A "spring" chicken should be cut into 10 pieces; two thighs or second joints, two "drumsticks," two pieces of breast, two wings, the neck and the back.

The neck and back may be fried,
but there is very little meat on them.
Cover these pieces with cold water and let simmer slowly until the gravy is made. Then strain stock and use in gravy. The liver and gizzard should be fried. Wash pieces and trim off ragged edges of skin. Let stand an hour in cold salted water to more than cover. Drain.

Mix one cup flour with two teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper.
Dip each piece of chicken in flour mixture, being sure that each piece is well covered. Melt two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons lard in an iron frying pan. Let this become very hot. Put in chicken and brown to a golden brown quickly, first on one side and then on the other. Reduce heat, cover pan tightly and cook slowly for an hour.

Watch closely and turn often to prevent burning. If the cover does not fit tightly enough to conserve the steam add one-quarter cup boiling water as necessary. If the chicken is a bit fat, as spring chickens often are, more butter and lard need not be added during the frying. Otherwise add one tablespoon butter and one tablespoon lard when chicken is half done. Remove chicken to a hot platter and keep hot while making the gravy.

There should be two tablespoons fat in the frying pan. Stir in two tablespoons flour. Stir until flour browns. Add one cup chicken stock slowly, stirring constantly. Add one cup rich milk, stirring constantly. Let boil three minutes and serve in a gravy boat with the chicken.

Adventures Of
The Twins

The Cloth of Dreams

Nick looked after Nancy, whom the gypsy woman was leading into the cave. Then he looked at the great chocolate cake that had been set out to cool.

Some way he felt that things were going all wrong.

Just then something dropped out of his pocket. It was the note the Magical Mushroom had left in the orchard.

"I'd better not lose that," thought
Nick, and he stooped to pick it up.

But lo and behold, the writing had changed from blue to red! He opened it and read: Don't go in the cave.
The gypsy woman is Twelve Toes the Sorcerer.

"Nancy," he screamed, "Come back. Don't go in there. Come back and we'll start on our journey over the Seven Mountains."

But Nancy didn't hear. Only the gypsy woman turned and leered at him, a queer crooked smile.

No wonder the little girl didn't hear, for the cloth the woman had given her to wipe up the spilled icing was the cloth of dreams. Whoever held it forgot everything and believed whatever he was told.

"Nancy, Nancy!" Nick kept calling, running after his sister. He intended to rescue her if he could before it was too late.

"Come, come, little master," said the gypsy woman sweetly, stepping suddenly and holding out her hand.
"The more the merrier. We'll have quite a little party."

Before he knew what was happening, she had taken Nick's hand and placed the other end of the cloth in it that Nancy held. The Cloth of Dreams, you know, my dears, and that was the end of poor Nick, or his memory. Instantly he forgot that he and Nancy were on an errand for the Fairy Queen. Forgotten were the daddys, the Korsknotts and the lost record of Longhead the Wise man.

JAUNTY SUITS

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

Spring and summer suits almost invariably favor youthful designs, for youthfulness fits in so well with the spirit of the season. This year shows no exception to the general rule, for short box coats are in the majority. Set-in sleeves have a definite place in suit styles. Skirts maintain their straight, unfitted lines and are shorter in length than dresses of most types.

These youthful features, together with generous lapels, patch pockets, and a skirt made less severe by overlying straps or bindings of self-material, all evidence for smartness.

Tan ratine bound with white cotton crepe braid or white linen are especially desirable for such a suit.
Many suits of this type are also being developed from silk this season. Of the silks, those of the heavy crepe or novelty sports weave, such as "Thistled," may be used to the best advantage.

OUR FIRST YEAR

Chapter 37—Has Wife Right to a Secret

By a Bride

I never supposed I'd ever have any secrets from Jack. But I have!
I've just drifted into the situation.
The current of events was strong and too smooth to be noticed.

To conceal anything I have in my mind from my dear husband is unthinkable—but here I am and what am I to do?

Brooding over my plight, I recalled what Mary had said one day:
"I tell Andy everything!"

To this complacency, Jeanne Alison responded sharply:
"Even when you know your husband has secrets from you? About business, now. Do you suppose your Andy tells you everything?"

I put the question to Jack, just so, and he said that he'd never thought of all about the subject, that my question amused him!

"You girls! Do you waste time discussing that kind of bunk?"

"Why yes! Don't you?"
"Not that I ever heard!"
"But you men have lots of secrets from us, now, don't you?"

"Why—no! Why—yes! Peggins, it's hard for a man to get at what a wife means, sometimes, you sound so deep, like a lecture on ethics, you know."

"It certainly isn't hard to understand that Andy Smith's stenographer knows more about his bank account than his wife does!" I asserted hotly, rather hurt. I couldn't tell why.

"What if she does? Doesn't his secretary or bookkeeper or somebody have to bank his checks and verify the figures in his bank book?"

"I admit Mary wouldn't like to do the banking just for the sake of knowing what's in the book, although I do not doubt at all that Andy's secretary likes to think she knows something Mrs. Smith doesn't.
So there, Jack Madison!"

"Mary can have the information for the asking! But she gets peeved, you say, because the stenographer is on the job first!" laughed Jack.

"There's sex in business for you!
You women! Now would Mary care a ding doodle what Andy's stenographer knew—if she were a man?"

"I admit she wouldn't! But it isn't funny and you needn't laugh so! I hope I'll never feel like Mary about it. Why, Jack, I'd never conceal anything from you! Not about us! But about other people! Isn't there a difference?"

"To me, there sure is! What do other people's affairs matter to me, Peggins? When I get home at night
I want you and nobody else. The world and his wife never enter my mind, dear unless you poke 'em in!"

Jack kissed me for emphasis, but even as he kissed me it occurred to me that Mrs. Herrod probably popped into my husband's mind every time he picked up a chess-board!

Laundress Not to Blame for Washtub Scandal

Don't blame the materials or the laundress for gray-looking clothes, frayed edges, thin spots and tiny holes in fabrics. If these things happen the chances are that your lau-dry soap is nearly 1-3 water glass or some other nasty "filler." Most ordinary white and yellow laundry soaps contain much of it.

With a microscope you could probably see the fine, glistening particles of water glass that crystallize in the strands of the fabric when your clothes dry out. These cut up the threads; usually the holes show up in the worn spots first. Other "fillers" simply rot the fabric.

Careful women are avoiding this nowadays by getting The Palmolive Co.'s large, greenish laundry bar that is all soap—no "filler"—c a l l e d GREEN ARROW. To see the results best, try it at least a month or two.
You'll notice the very first trial that it does not red-stain, roughen or burn your hands. But to note the big difference in the whiteness, softness and freshness of your clothes and in the quantity of soap you save, several trials are best. You can also avoid the boiling and destructive rubbing for the olive oil and naphtha take the dirt right out with a little soaking and restore the virgin whiteness of the fibers.

Fabric experts wash with olive oil soap because it imparts that olive oil softness and sweetness to the fibers.
GREEN ARROW is the most economical soap as well as the most delicious, for being all soap it is all cleansing power and goes nearly twice as far as the ordinary.

Pay a cent or two more for GREEN ARROW and save many dollars in clothes and many bars of soap.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS PLACED IN CHARGE OF PARKS

Council Makes New Arrangements for Supervision of Recreation Places

Supervision of Appleton's public parks was transferred from the common council's street and bridge committee to the board of public works by the city council Wednesday evening. This is to conform with a Wisconsin statute requiring that the board of public works or a park commission be entrusted with the care of parks where such commissions exist, otherwise making it the care of the council itself. The street committee is not authorized to make expenditures, the city attorney said.

The present board of public works, consisting of Mayor Henry Reuter, chairman, Theodore Berg, city attorney, O. F. Weissgerber, city engineer, Aldermen A. W. Laabs and Charles Fosse, was enlarged to include the following members of the street and bridge committee: Aldermen L. O. Hansen, C. D. Thompson, William Murphy, and H. R. Reske.

PIERCE PARK CARETAKER
A caretaker will be provided for Pierce park according to action taken at the council meeting. George Merkle, deputy health officer, has been the caretaker for Alicia park since last year. At a previous council meeting it was proposed that one caretaker look after both parks. This met with some opposition on the ground that the caretaker of Alicia park, which is the city tourists camp site, needs to be a man who is capable of being an information bureau for visitors. Mr. Merkle, it was pointed out, is such a man.

Rules governing the care and the use of parks will be prepared. Churches, lodges and societies will be notified that the use of the parks is entirely free and that no exclusive reservations will be given to any organization.

DOG AND CAT EAT POISONER'S MEAT

Plot to Kill Two Dogs at Baldwin Home Fails—Pet Cat Dies from Effects

Dog poisoners who have been operating in Appleton the last few weeks again were active Tuesday night but failed to accomplish their ends, although a pet cat at the home of George Baldwin, 334 Cherry st., died as a result.

One of two valuable dogs at the Baldwin home ate some of the poisoned meat placed on the lawn but its condition was discovered in time for a veterinarian to administer an antidote and save the animal's life.

The poisoner cut sausage in pieces about an inch long and placed arsenic at the center of each, restoring the meat at the ends. These were placed in the Baldwin yard, where the cat and the dog found them.

An effort is being made by the police to identify the poisoner and put an end to his work. The person usually plots the death of dogs of value at some of the city's finer homes.

Keller Employees Lease Annex of New Insurance Building for New Enterprise

Two employees of K. F. Keller & Sons jewelry store, which is going out of business, have leased the one-story annex of the new insurance building from the Aid Association of Lutherans and will secure for themselves about Aug. 1. They are Joseph Plitz, formerly of Oshkosh, and Raymond J. Treiber, 1249 Lawrence st.

The young men have formed a partnership under the name of Plitz and Treiber, and will conduct a fully equipped jewelry store and repair shop, with modern facilities.

Mr. Plitz was employed with Krumrich-Konrad company, Oshkosh, for three years and has been with the Keller firm for more than two years. Mr. Treiber has worked with the Keller company for five years.

Troubles Of Autoists Are Becoming Less As Inventors Keep Busy

Hardware Stores and Garages Here are Filled With Novel Appliances for Automobiles Everything Looks for Comfort.

Enter now the painless automobile era. Inventors keep on adding to the "new fangled" time and labor saving devices on the automobile, the troubled motorist no longer will be troubled. And with the gradual passing of a few more of his trials and tribulations the motorist's millennium is not far distant.

A well behaved automobile is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, everyone knows. That is why automobile manufacturers are each year fitting the cars with new features designed to make the abuse the vehicle occasionally get from strong language. It is for the same reason that other manufacturers are constantly crowding the market with new automobile accessories.

It's a fact. The tendency in the production of automobiles is not so much toward appearance and speed as toward reliability and comfort. Time was when the dash board of a car was as bare as that of a farmer's buckboard. The general equipment sufficed to carry one through the prophetic days and one trusted in Heaven for the rest.

ARRAY OF DIALS
Fortune now beams upon the discontented driver and offers him almost anything he wants in the way of conveniences, ranging from windshield visors to clear lighters. The instrument board of his automobile presents a pretty array of various buttons, switches and dials, each being the key to some time-saver or burden eliminator.

The man whose nerves are on edge because of the fear of the driver behind, whose sight is impaired by the blinding sun, or dust, or rain, who is wearing out his emergency brake to avoid running into people, who is wasting his time looking for spark trouble; who is in danger of losing his car to a professional auto thief—will probably find just the thing he needs in one of Appleton's business houses.

Autoists who formerly complained about the price of "get-off-the-earth" horns are greeted with the announcement of Galpin & Sons Hardware Co. of a new Klaxon motor-driven horn that gives the driver all the noise he wants for a price that is one third of former prices, or two thirds off. The low price has been made possible by a simplified design, it is said.

A patent Westinghouse ignition tester, known as the Spark C, also on sale at the same establishment, is just now quite the popular thing in auto accessories. The claims for this device which resembles a pencil are that it tells at a single glance whether a spark plug is dead or alive or dirty and whether there is a break in the wires. By holding it to the spark plug or wires, the defects will be learned by the kind of flash that is emitted from the tester. A similar instrument called the Airco ignition

Help the Kidneys Fight That Cold

Colds and grip cause thousands of cases of kidney trouble. In any germ disease the system becomes filled with poisons which the kidneys must filter off. All too often this extra burden weakens the kidneys. Then you have constant backache, headaches and dizziness; you lack ambition, feel dull, nervous and depressed. Don't ignore these warnings! Help the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Home folks recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

An Appleton Case
Mrs. Theo. H. Lembeck, 827 Meade st., says: "I was annoyed with kidney weakness and suffered with dull nagging backaches and pains across my back. I felt tired and languid mornings and had no strength or energy. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them as directed. They effected me of the kidney annoyances and removed the backaches and pains."

SWIMMING POOL TO BE OPENED SOON

The municipal swimming pool at the city waterworks plant, probably will be opened about the end of this month, it was announced at the city hall. No attempt will be made to open the pool much earlier as it is believed the weather still is too cool and that few would take advantage of the facilities.

A large attendance is again looked for this year. As in the past, certain days will be reserved for children, others for women, with certain hours for the working people. Bathing suits will have to be bought by the bathers, as no provision will be made for rental of suits. Shower baths will be used in connection with the pool.

MAKES 'EM STOP
The William Tesch store will also take pleasure in demonstrating a new patent stop signal. A red rear lamp bearing the word "Stop" is electrical-ly connected with brake. As soon as the brake is being set any motorist coming up from the rear is able to see at once the stop light.

A stop lamp modified to include both "stop" and "slow" signals is displayed at Schlafers Hardware Co. This light is operated by both the clutch and the brake. By pressing either the clutch or the brake pedal, a green light will flash the word "slow" while the pressing of both pedals will cause the red "stop" lamp to show.

Automobile thieves will be disappointed to learn of a theft-proof motor meter and radiator cap, on sale at Schlafers, Galpin's, C. Milhaupt & Son's automobile garage and other concerns. With this equipment, the radiator can be filled without removing the cap, as it tips back on a hinge. The motor-meter can be screwed on—and that's all. No thief can remove after it is once on, unless he tips the car upside down.

A patent clear lighter that is fixed to the instrument board and connected by wire with the batteries; a handy ash receptacle that allows the motorist to drive without having the ashes blown into his face; a new "see-all" mirror attached to the windshield that puts eyes in back of the driver's head; a tourists' duck hammock that is easily packed; a safety spotlight control that can be flashed into the driver's eyes, but which can be detached and used as a trouble lamp; a muffler cut-off for the dashboard are a few more of Schlafers' novel offerings.

Another timesaver is to be found in the combination checker and carburetor adjuster, kept in stock at the

HAILED BY HUNDREDS IN THIS CITY AS GREATEST PREPARATION OF THE AGE

Statements Which Countless Local People Have Made Will Stand As Everlasting Tribute To Trutona's Remarkable Effectiveness In Overcoming Nervousness, Dizziness, Headaches, Back, Side Pains, Sleeplessness, General Debility, Gastritis, Blood Disorders And As Constructive Tonic—Great Demand Increasing

"It's the greatest stomach, liver, kidney, bowel and blood remedy of all time"—that's what hundreds of Appleton residents think about Trutona today. As in every city where it has been introduced in the past three years, Trutona has brought simply remarkable relief to scores and scores of Appleton people. Many who thought their cases hopeless have told in grateful words how this stirring remedy completely overcame troubles from which they had suffered for years and restored their health.

Many other Appleton residents, not troubled with chronic ills, but whose systems are not in the best condition and who see in Trutona a wonderful reconstructive tonic, are taking this great medicine to build up their systems, weakened and rundown by the past winter.

The following statements from nearly a score of local people, strikingly show Trutona's practically unending effectiveness in overcoming nervousness, dizziness, back, side pains, gastritis, blood disorders and the like.

If YOU are in poor health, we ask YOU to read carefully every one of the following quotations—not from residents of some far-off state—but from respected and well-known people of YOUR OWN HOME TOWN!

Mrs. H. Wolfram, 573 Main st., says: "Influenza left me terribly weakened and I'll tell you it's remarkable how quickly Trutona built me up in strength. It relieved me of dizziness and brought sound sleep to me also."

L. Mantle, 621 Lincoln st., says: "This medicine Trutona's given me more relief from stomach and liver troubles than all the others I've ever tried. It's undoubtedly a wonderful preparation."

Mrs. Emil Handon, 724 Atlantic st., says: "I feel better now than I have for years, since taking Trutona. My food tastes so good, the tired, peevish feeling has left me and my housework is really a pleasure nowadays."

Mrs. B. L. Kern, 824 Tonka st., says: "My husband says his stomach hasn't acted so nicely in years as it does since he's taken Trutona. He said the other day he considered Trutona the finest medicine he has ever taken."

Mrs. Frank Spierl, 1245 Spencer st., says: "I'd spent a lot of money, trying for relief from severe stomach troubles, but nothing helped me at all until I began using this great medicine Trutona recently."

Mrs. G. F. Courtney, 835 Prospect st., says: "I can honestly and conscientiously recommend Trutona to anyone who is suffering from constipation. I'm certainly well satisfied with the benefits this medicine's given me."

Mrs. M. H. Busy, 925 Durkee st., says: "It's actually almost unbelievable that any medicine could relieve me of kidney troubles like Trutona really has. I simply feel 100 per cent improved nowadays."

The foregoing statements ring with sincerity that cannot be doubted. They set forth facts which show conclusively beyond any possible doubt that Trutona is DIFFERENT from the average proprietary remedy, a medicine quicker to give relief, more thorough in action and ONE remedy possessed of positively remarkable reconstructive merit—just what thousands need at this season to overcome after-effects of many winter ills.

PLENTY OF WORK FOR LABORERS NOW

There is plenty of work in Appleton for common laborers, according to C. L. Boynton, employment secretary of the Y. M. C. A. He had on file Wednesday morning more than a dozen requests for workers, but no applications from which to fill them.

Very few people except those wanting clerical work or stenographic positions are out of work now. One man who had been asking for work called Mr. Boynton this week wanting to hire others, having become an employer himself.

John Wolf and Ensign Jenkins, both of Rockland, Wis., and William Henry of Marquette, Mich., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Deml, 733 Richmond st. Mr. Wolf is the brother of Mrs. Deml.

Fred Kading Adds Skunk To His Menagerie

It is not everybody that can command the friendship and confidence of a certain animal known perhaps better by its odor than by its name. Yet Fred Kading, a farmer in the town of Center, succeeded in catching one alive and taming it. There on his farm it has become the plaything of the children. They pick it up like any other house pet and carry it on their arms, for their pet is well-behaved animal. The skunk was caught last fall and kept all winter with the cats in the barn. It is kept in a cage as a protection for strangers. Two fox squirrels and a crow are also a part of the Kading menagerie.

ARRANGE ENTERTAINMENT FOR CONVENTION HERE

BIG PROGRAM IS PROMISED CITY OFFICERS

Banquet, Program and Automobile Tour Among Many Enjoyable Features

Entertainment which will cause Appleton to be long remembered by the hundreds of men and women who come here to attend the convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities June 7, 8 and 9 was planned by the convention committee of the common council and the convention and publicity committee of the chamber of commerce in the city hall Wednesday evening. The delegates will be reminded constantly that Appleton is a live city and knows how to entertain its guests. A banquet, music, address, automobile tour and many other enjoyable features are included in the plans.

Delegates are expected to arrive here on Wednesday, June 7 and register in the council chamber of the city hall which has been designated as convention headquarters. Information booths, under the direction of A. C. Rule, assessor, will be maintained there. Visitors will be told where to find hotels, parking places for their cars, meeting places and points of interest. Delegates arriving by train will be met at the depot by automobiles and escorted to the city hall and to their hotels.

Combination welcome and direction signs will greet visitors arriving by automobile at the city limits to guide them to the city hall. These signs will be placed so that strangers will have no difficulty reaching the convention headquarters. Provision also was made for parking automobiles of the visitors while they are here. Special police protection will be provided for the cars.

Business sessions of the convention will be held in Lawrence Memorial chapel and the banquet will be served in Elk club. The business program is to be prepared by the executive committee of the league and will be ready for announcement soon.

In all probability the Wednesday afternoon program will be deferred until Wednesday night and presented in connection with banquet which probably will be served by Appleton Women's club. The hall is to be elaborately decorated and splendid entertainment will be provided. A committee consisting of City Attorney Theodore Berg, Alderman Beske and William Ryan will be in charge of arrangements. Another committee, including George Wettengel, F. X. Bachman, William Murphy and Oscar Weissgerber will have charge of arranging decorations for the banquet.

An "All Appleton" entertainment will be provided for the visitors Thursday night, if possible. This program will be held in Lawrence chapel. Appleton numbers among its people some of the most talented entertainers in the midwest and they will be asked to take part in this program which probably will be the most unique ever attempted for entertainment of a convention. It probably will include vaudeville entertainers, soloists and musicians.

Friday afternoon the delegates will be treated to an automobile ride over Outagamie county's splendid concrete highway system. Details for this tour have not been worked out.

Letters will be sent each city in the state inviting them to send their officials to Appleton and assuring them a "rattling good time." Alderman John F. Lappen was appointed to arrange for hotel reservations for the visitors.

Another meeting of the two committees will be held Monday evening to make further arrangements for the big conference.

Ask Haskin If You Want To Get Real Information

Problems of the home, school, business, recreation, entertainment, and sports are among those submitted by local residents to Frederic J. Haskin, Washington, who conducts the "Question Box" in The Post-Crescent. Included in the boxful of questions for one week is the request of Kaukauna boy for information on guinea pig raising. Mr. Haskin has sent him literature on what he needs to know about guinea pigs and also given him a list of markets where he may dispose of his stock for profit.

An Appleton lad living on Harrison, asks how far a 22 caliber rifle will shoot that is loaded with a 22 cartridge. He is informed that a 22 caliber rifle will shoot with fair accuracy with a 22 cartridge to a distance of 100 yards.

A former service man of Appleton, seeks information on compensation which he believes is due him for injuries resulting from a prank played upon him while overseas. He is told what to do. A Cherry-st. school girl wants to know the names of three American essayists and two dramatists of the present century and some of their works. Her thirst for knowledge is satisfied. A housewife wants to know how housecleaning can be made easier. She gets a government pamphlet telling her all about it. A railroad man asks about passes to employees. A Kaukauna man wants names and addresses of coin collectors. These are a few samples of the great variety of questions submitted. They cost no money and receive prompt attention.

The Post-Crescent reminds its readers again that Mr. Haskin does not impart advice on love affairs, domestic troubles, legal, medical or financial matters. Questions of information alone are answered. State your question plainly and briefly; give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps. Moreover, letters are not to be sent to this office, but directly to the Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. Last week 21 letters were received by Mr. Haskin from this community. There were a number of requests for free concrete booklets, and an equal number for books on bee raising. Other books sent on request were those on flower culture, canned food recipes, farm gardening, milk bulletins, and fire protection.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN ROBBERY CASE

County and village authorities are continuing their investigation of clues to the persons who robbed the Froehlich and Gehlke hardware store at Black Creek Monday night. A bloodhound followed a trail from the store to a Black Creek residence and officers since then have picked up additional clues.

No arrests have been made thus far but it is expected there will be new developments in the near future.

NEED 75 SUITS TO SHIP TO RUSSIANS

Owners of Castoff Clothing Asked to Telephone Y. M. C. A. Their Offers

Twenty clothing outfits have been obtained by dormitory men of the Y. M. C. A. in the collection campaign for relief of Russian teachers and students. Appleton's quota is 75 suits, 75 pairs of shoes and caps out of 50,000 to be obtained throughout the United States.

Clothing donations will be received up to Saturday, when each will be tagged for shipment. The dormitory committee is having each man see his friends and they are being induced to give their castoff clothes which are in good condition for the use of persons who otherwise would be obliged to pay 1,000,000 rubles in Russia to clothe themselves.

It is the belief of C. L. Boyton, activities secretary of the Y. M. C. A. that many men in Appleton have suits, hats and shoes in their garrets for which they have no further use and which would be given gladly. All the committee asks is that a telephone call be made to No. 2266 and the clothing will be called for.

Pretty Hard To Fool Wise Postal Clerks

Persons guilty of missing the mails probably do not realize the risk they are incurring. Many who use the mails to defraud, or send other non-mailable matter in sealed envelopes, or ship forbidden articles by parcel post, or enclose first class mail matter in parcel post packages, may feel quite secure if they have avoided all appearance of suspicion in the wrapping of their mail matter. But they have also to cope with something that is less tangible.

It is instinct—so postal clerks in the Appleton postoffice define it. The appearance and deportment of the person posting the mail or the appearance of packages, wrapping, address, are a few of the things to arouse suspicion. But sometimes, so mail clerks aver, they have been impelled by some suspicion for which they could find no cause at all. On opening the packages they invariably discovered that their suspicions were well founded.

Reason, observation and experience, however, are not dispensed with by any means, they say. There are many ways of detecting whether a traveling man is having a used orderbook sent by parcel post instead of by first class mail; whether a student is enclosing a note in the laundry package, or whether some bootlegger is sending a point of "hooch."

GEO. WALSH CO.

Janet Taylor—Wife

By Virginia Lynch Maxwell.

THE breach had seemingly widened during the past few days. And Janet realized that Carlie was not the good friend she had at first thought her to be. Some of the insinuating remarks she had cast upon her and Dr. McLean smote her with a sickening sensation.

Ken, too, had disappointed her. She wondered if, after all, Dr. McLean had not been right; that she was really becoming neurotic and needed more play. But the thoughts of her husband banished all desire to stay on at the delightful watering place. Impulsively she reached for a tablet of telegraph blanks and began to write her message to him. At three o'clock a reply came.

Quickly she tore open the envelope and read it hastily.

"Heaven's sake, rest easy. Went camping back Holloway over week end. Everything all right home. Awfully lonely, dear, but want you have good rest. KENNETH."

That decided it. If Kenneth was lonely she would return to him. She turned abruptly to catch up some of Janet's clothes and saw that Carlie was standing in the doorway, smiling at her.

"What's the great commotion, dear?" she asked in a languid voice.

"Leaving." "So soon," Carlie asked in surprise.

"Yes. I've just received a wire. Poor Ken is lonely—and I'm—"

Carlie burst into a mirthful round of laughter.

"To think of your believing that about any man. Dear child, I've never seen that rare species of male."

Janet blinked her amazement. Then she laughed suddenly at the irony of Carlie's view. She marvelled at the dreadful experience Carlie must have had to give her such a warped viewpoint.

Carlie was already dressed for dinner. And Janet decided to slip into her white embroidered robe and new slippers that she might get one evening's wear at least out of the dainty frock she had so carefully laid aside for her last Sunday at the shore.

"I wanted to tell you, Nettie, that we've a date for to-night," Carlie laughed, as they went down the stairs together. "and I'm glad, dear, you donned your Sunday best. You look so sweet in white, I'm sure you'll be the hit of the party."

"A date. What do you mean?" Janet questioned, with a puzzled frown.

"It's this way. A college friend of Paul's from the West is in town.

Paul telephoned you this afternoon to ask you if you'd join a little party for his friend this evening. But you were out. And of course I knew it was our doctor, so I took the call for you. Then Paul asked me if I wouldn't join you and be his friend's partner. I accepted—tentatively, of course. And he promised to telephone you again at seven to make certain. You'll go, won't you?"

Janet hesitated. But Carlie kept her eyes riveted to the girl's wavering expression as if working her hypnotic charm for an affirmative. And gradually Janet found herself succumbing to Carlie's will as usual.

Paul McLean called with his car at eight-thirty. Carlie flashed him a smile as he introduced Jack Keats and when the young physician had made Janet quite comfortable at his side in front, they sped out from the heavy traffic of the cross streets, out to the clear avenue that stretched away toward a green and gold horizon beyond the bulkhead at the end of the shore line.

They rode along in silence for some miles, then Dr. McLean turned and smiled at Janet. His strong hands had gripped the wheel, but now he let one of them slide from its place and, moved by a sudden impulse, gently patted the small hand she had let fall to her side.

Carlie saw the act and Janet felt uncomfortable.

"Please," said Janet, in a low murmur, "don't let's spoil a beautiful friendship."

Paul McLean looked hurt for just the fraction of a moment. Then he seemed to understand with his old analysis.

"Of course," he whispered, "I'm sorry."

They turned into a tree-lined lane and behind the dark shadows of the wide veranda there loomed a Colonial Inn. Within, Janet could see the small tables set about the long, old hall, each boasting its rosette-lamp in subdued mellowness.

They had strolled out to the veranda and Carlie had made her self comfortable in a lounge chair with Jack Keats now opened, adorning at her feet, when the proprietor appeared in the doorway and beckoned to Dr. McLean with a nod.

"A call for Dr. McLean," he announced. At once Paul sprang forward and stepped quickly into the private office.

In a moment he was back, a sort of puzzled expression on his face.

"I've got to go, folks," he said in a disappointed tone, "but I really have to. One of my patients is in a serious way. It's a shame to break up the party this way. But you know—"

"In that event," Carlie put in at once, "two's company"—she laughed. "Why don't you take Janet along with you?" Jack and I'll wait right here until you return. You won't be gone very long, will you? And I know Janet will feel out of place with us and no partner for herself."

Janet opened her mouth to protest. But Dr. McLean had grasped the idea that Carlie did not want the girl to stay.

"Fine-o," he returned jovially, "what say, little lady? Shall we start?"

Janet agreed reluctantly. But she felt, with a keen intuition, that all might not end as well now as it had begun.

My Secret of Charm

By Marilyn Miller.

"D RINK to me only with thine eyes, and I will pledge with mine," wrote a famous poet.

The line itself is inspiration enough for every woman to want to have beautiful eyes. The eyes are the mirrors of the soul, the reflections of our thoughts. Their beauty lies not only in the expression that our thoughts define, but in the health of the tissue itself and the graceful charm of the silken fringe that outlines them.

If you have been gifted with beautiful eyes it is a duty you owe yourself to preserve this gift. If nature has overlooked this all-important feature special time must be devoted to the daily care of the eyes to bring out all the charm that lies in them.

The daily eye bath is the rule that every woman should follow. At night preferably, just before retiring, is the best time to bathe the eyes. Mix a light solution of warm sterilized water, that is, water that has been boiled and cooled, with a pinch of boracic acid. Pour some of the solution into a scrupulously clean eye cup and lift it to the eye. Throw back the head and close the eye. Place the cup directly over the eye, open quickly and roll the eye around so that the boracic acid solution may touch every part of its tissue.

When both eyes have been bathed the next step is to look toward the delicate lashes.

A daily massage treatment to nourish the tissues from which these silken hairs grow will do wonders toward promoting their growth. A square of old linen should be dipped into warm water, wrung out and applied to the closed eye. The warmth will expand the pores temporarily and permit the cream to be absorbed and effect the desired nourishing results.

With the eye open apply a small amount of white vaseline on the lower, then upper lid.

The vaseline will nourish the brows and lashes and stimulate their growth if applied faithfully once a day. In some cases a few weeks are necessary before the promotion of growth is discernible.

Lanolin is sometimes used on the eyelashes to promote their growth. While its effectiveness may be seen in a shorter length or time, the lanolin salve is a product from the oil glands of sheep and is a little irritating to sensitive tissues.

The salve is best used when heated and applied warm to the upper and lower lid of the eye, being careful to wipe away all excess.

Brushing the eyelashes is another way to stimulate their growth. The lashes should be washed nightly to cleanse them of pencilling or dust. Then the very narrow eyebrow brush is used, brushing with an outward stroke, first the top lashes, then the lower.

The lashes may be brushed more effectively if the eye is closed and a gentle stroke is employed from the eyelid out to the end of the hairs. This stroke also tends to make the lashes curl back in a graceful line when the eye is opened.

Clipping the eyelashes to promote their growth I do not recommend. The clipping is a dangerous process at best and very often the eyelashes do not ever grow back where once their natural growth has been tampered with. If, however, your eyelashes have that uneven, stringy appearance it is well to have them clipped evenly. But I do not advise that you attempt to do this yourself. Go to a good beauty specialist who knows her business or ask one of your women friends, in whose steady hand you have confidence. A cuticle scissors from the manicure chest is the best instrument for the purpose.

Question: What can you recommend for an oily skin? I have used vanishing creams to rid my nose of its undesirable shine but have found no results.

Answer: Bathe the affected parts of your skin nightly with warm water and a good, pure soap. Do not use any cream at all. Wring out a linen cloth in cold water and apply with hazel to the cleansed surface. Regular use of this treatment will bring the oil glands back to normal.

In the Shops

FOR the first social affairs of the debutante there is a dainty evening wrap in peach color taffeta with wide ruffles of self material around its entire width. Two silk corn knots in old blue adorn the front closing.

THE batik has entered the negligee field, and now there comes a pair of lounging pajamas in this artistically smudged silk. Orange with gray blue and violet designs over its surface is hand-dyed and belted with black satin in one of the newest models.

Could You Forgive Her?

SINCE women jurors have come to be an issue of the day many questions heretofore taken only in their legal aspect have been opened for discussion. Sometimes the law leaves no opening except for the verdict of "guilty," yet the women who have served on juries feel that the prisoner on trial has a story whose human appeal goes deeper than any law might reach.

Recently there was such a woman brought before the world on a charge of unfaithfulness by the husband who would divorce her. She admitted the charge and was immediately catalogued by all the world as being wicked.

She was a beautiful girl, accustomed to the attentions of men all ways.

When the little lady in question was graduated from a finishing school, she met the man of her heart and in a short time was married to him. Several years elapsed and there was a smoothly run household with plenty of love to keep the matrimonial coals oiled.

Gradually, the husband became indifferent. Evenings when he would return from his office after a day of not very strenuous work, he would die beside his charming wife, whose interest in her own personal appearance had never waned. Not once did he ever notice her.

When the situation had gone on for some time and the loneliness and disappointment began to show its signs on the little wife's pallid face she decided to have an open discussion of the matter.

She told her husband of the bitter loneliness and hurt she had endured because of his lack of interest. He laughed.

The husband said he did love her, but that married people should be settled.

Then to pass the lonely evenings when Mr. Husband would sit back and read by himself all evening, the wife joined a club. It was here she met the other man during one of the musical entertainments. He showed his interest in her at once. But always, because she was a married woman, she used her "clubby" personality. But time worked its miracle. The affection the wife had tried to give her "settled" husband found another outlet where it was reciprocated. And it was after a year's association with the man who had not come to the stage of being settled because he was still a bachelor, the wife gave herself completely.

It was wrong, of course, terribly wrong. But it would not have happened had the husband who is now so bitterly reproachful understood something of a woman's nature. And yet the law brands the woman as a criminal, the other man in the case as a rotter, and the husband as the victim upon whom all the world showers sympathy.

Poems for Your Scrap Book

THE SANDS O' DEE.

"O Mary, go and call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home,
And call the cattle home,
Across the sands o' Dee."

The western wind was wild and dank with foam,
And all alone went she
The creeping tide came up along the sand,
And o'er and o'er the same
And round and round the sand,
As far as eye could see.
The blinding mist came down and hid the land—
And never home came she

"Oh is it weed, or fish, or floating hair—
A tress of golden hair,
Of drowned maiden's hair,
Above the nets at sea.
Was never salmon yet that shone so fair
Among the stakes on Dee."

They row'd her in across the rolling foam,
The cruel crawling foam,
The cruel hungry foam,
To her grave beside the sea;
But still the boatmen hear her call the cattle home
Across the sands o' Dee.

—Charles Kingsley.

New Fashions in Embryo

NEW ideas from Paris, each significant of its own expression, are coming to America every day. The American woman will choose from the French offerings what suits her fancy, and on this judgment will hang the fate of the new fashions.

As yet, many of the new styles are in the embryo. But that makes the future of fashions all the more interesting. From its inception there will gradually be developed by the method of pruning out the undesirable and building up the adopted lines from the original French model the frock that will be offered in the shops within a few weeks.

The sign posts are hopeful. They may be taken as definite keys to the fundamental principles of one's wardrobe. And by a careful application of these rules one may find herself not far astray from fashion's last word when the final curtain is drawn.

Hats are large, and they will be drooping of brim. As yet, all the modistes are concentrating on shapes and material rather than on trimming. But several of the more exclusive salons, where one is not usually permitted to peep beyond the door of style's sanctum, are beginning now to take up the matter of millinery trimming. There will undoubtedly be metal trimming in abundance, with wool closely following. Tassels of silk and chenille embroidery are some of the new evidences. Yet, while the lines of the new hats are severely simple, the trimmings take on a most lavish air. Extreme notes in tassels are to be found, one broad tassel of black silk reaching to the waistline as it droops gracefully from the left side of a severely plain black, crepe shape.

The new length in frocks has had its bearing upon the lines of millinery, for the costume complete is what the designers must take into consideration. No longer can the woman indulge in these little bits of nothingness, as one millinery designer puts it, that is swirled round and round her head and pulled down any old way. When frocks were extremely short and there was little trimming to lighten their surfaces, these hats were in keeping with the nothingness.

Now, he claims, since frocks are longer and more artistic in design, millinery must keep time and other hats with a real idea of line and form.

The uneven hem has grown in popularity, so that now it is one of the genuine earmarks of the latest modes. Contrary to what had been anticipated in the early days when the buyers began to flock abroad, the consensus of desire seemed to be for longer sleeves. It was too rude a shock to lengthen at once the bodice length that had come to be looked upon as perfectly proper for street wear, so that sleeves have made their descent gradually, almost unnoticeably.

Inch by inch they have crept downward. The newest models are ready for their added length that will put them in the term of "three-quarter" length. But the sleeves have widened considerably. In place of the narrow sleeve that began with the tailored coat suit and worked its influence into the satin frocks for day wear, the materials being used have inspired the flowing line.

Ripple-back cuffs, faced with a startlingly brilliant shade of silk are new notes too. One fetching model recently displayed at the fashion show boasted navy serge, with inset puff sleeves at the wrist. There was a similar ruffle about the neck and a band of the plaited silk set into the skirt just above the hem.

FIND WISCONSIN IS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER AUTO TRAIL

City Officials Here Greet Yellowstone Trail Blazing Car Wednesday

The 1922 official trail blazing car for the Chicago-Twin Cities division of the Yellowstone trail came to Appleton Wednesday, bringing the greetings of all the cities on the way from St. Paul and taking the greetings of Appleton officials to points enroute to the Atlantic coast, to which the itinerary has been extended as a publicity measure.

The party was met outside the city limits on the Medina rd. shortly before 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by a committee consisting of Ambrose Wilton, trailman for Appleton, John Neller of Pettibone-Peabody company, and George T. Prim, chief of police, and escorted to the city hall, where they were greeted by city officials. In the absence of both Mayor Henry Reuter and H. R. Beske, president of the common council, the party was received by Theodore F. Weissgerber, city engineer. The car arrived promptly at 4 o'clock according to schedule.

Henry Orme of St. Paul, member of the executive committee of the Yellowstone Trail association, headed the party. Other members of the group were Charles Harrington of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press and Dispatch; J. W. Cance, assistant secretary of the St. Paul Association of Commerce; William Mannheimer, trailman of St. Paul; H. O. Cooley, general manager of the Yellowstone Trail Association.

GREETINGS FROM GOVERNOR
The reception at the city hall was more in the nature of a private conference and exchange of ideas than a public meeting. Mr. Orme presented to the city of Appleton the personal greetings of Governors Trues of Minnesota, Nestos of North Dakota, McMeister of South Dakota and Blaine of Wisconsin. The same greetings will be carried to the governor of New York. The letters open the doors of these states to all tourists, inviting settlers, and express the desire to promote friendship between all the cities on the route.

Mr. Orme said that cordial receptions accorded the party all along the route confirmed him in his belief that Wisconsin is enthusiastic over the trail. After leaving St. Paul Monday at 10 o'clock, they made their first stop at Hudson, where a public banquet awaited them. About 2,000 people turned out to greet them when they came to Stevens Point. While in Eau Claire Monday a large social program was given in their honor, consisting of luncheon, music, addresses and a boxing match staged by a minister.

WON'T LOSE TRAIL
Mr. Cooley in reply to Mr. Berg's desire that the trail would not be relocated so as to eliminate Appleton, said that there is no likelihood of taking away the trail regardless of whether Appleton raises its yearly assessment or not. He asserted that the association was not waging a propaganda to sell automobile travel. The impression he sought to leave here, however, is that the Yellowstone trail is the vehicle through which all cities in the east and west cooperate for their own mutual advantages.

The party left at 5 o'clock for Menasha. Neenah and Oshkosh, again escorted by the committee a short distance out of the city limits. Stockton, Amherst, Sheridan, Waupun, Wausau, Fremont, Readfield, Dale, and Medina were the places covered Wednesday before reaching Appleton.

FILL HOLES WITH TAR ON APPLETON-MENASHA ROAD

Improving of the surface of the Appleton-Menasha highway has been accomplished by the Wisconsin highway commission through filling up of holes in the concrete pavement with a tar product. The roadway is the oldest of concrete construction in Wisconsin, and the heavy traffic caused its surface to become worn so there were deep holes in places. The highway was built in 1913 and 1914. It is said to be smooth and in good condition now.

Few Signs Of Suffering Are Evident In Europe

B. J. Zuehlke Contrasts Farming Methods in Germany and in France

French are adopting modern methods of farming faster than the Germans and now and then a tractor is seen in the French fields, according to B. J. Zuehlke, cashier of Appleton State bank, who returned this week from a brief tour in Europe. Mr. Zuehlke and his family cut short their trip abroad because of difficulties of travel and exorbitant demands made on tourists.

Mr. Zuehlke said cows and oxen are used for pulling plows and other farm machinery in Germany, while horses are more commonly used in France. German homes, however, are neater.

"German farmers prospered more than those of any other country during the war," Mr. Zuehlke said, "because of the scarcity of their products which brought fabulous prices. There was very pronounced suffering among the people generally toward the close of the war as they were without food and clothing. Relief from the United States came at a very opportune time and the people still are grateful to the Americans. They give them credit for winning the war, but harbor no ill will against the country."

NO UNEMPLOYMENT
"Judging from outward appearances the people are fairly prosperous. Both the cities and rural districts are densely populated and so far as I observed the people appeared fairly well clothed and fed. It was noticeable, however, that many of the garments worn by people of moderate means had been cut over several times. Practically all of the people are employed, but wages are low, the average workman earning not more than 60 cents a day."

Mr. Zuehlke's party which consisted of himself and wife and daughter Floret spent much of their time in Paris and made daily trips in all directions. They visited a portion of the country made desolate by the war and practically all points of historic interest. The trips were made by automobile and the prices were exorbitant. Some of them cost up to $200, but the Appleton tourists passed them up. Some of the cathedrals and churches damaged during the war have been repaired.

PARIS IS PROSPEROUS
Money is spent as lavishly as ever in Paris and prices are exorbitant, especially hotel rates. Night is turned into day and many of the business places do not open until late in the forenoon. Theatres all are well patronized and there is nothing to indicate the country is heavily involved financially.

France gives the United States no credit for having won the war, said Mr. Zuehlke. In all European countries, and particularly in France, people make light of the possibility of the loans made by the United States to foreign countries ever being paid. Apparently they do not assume any responsibility in this respect.

In speaking of styles, Miss Floret Zuehlke said she visited no city that compared with Paris. The women all are well dressed and wear the latest fashions. The darker shades appear to be the most popular and where colors are worn they blend perfectly. High heeled shoes are worn exclusively and shirts have been lengthened. Practically all the women smoke cigarettes.

UNION PHARMACY

Makes Remarkable Offer to Any Person in Appleton Who is Weak, Sick, Nervous Or Run-Down

It is Now Possible for You to Come to This Store, Buy a Regular $1.10 Package of Nuxated Iron for 93 Cents, Use It For Two Weeks, and If at the End of That Time You Have Not Received All, and Even Greater Benefits Than You Expect, Simply Bring the Wrapper Back to Union Pharmacy, and We Will Cheerfully Hand You Back Your Money.

Appleton people may well ask how we can afford to make this remarkable "Satisfaction or Money Back" offer. Medical examinations by physicians all over the country show that an amazing number of people lack 100% iron in their blood. At a recent conference, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, former physician of Bellevue Hospital (Out Door Department), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said, "Without iron, the blood becomes weak, thin, pale and watery. In many people this so seriously weakens their vital organs as to lead them to believe that they have heart or stomach trouble, kidney disease, nerve force exhaustion or some other serious ailment. I have had people come to me thinking they had heart trouble, because they often had pains and palpitation of the heart, sudden dizziness, faintness or spots before the eyes. In a great many of these cases, the moment iron was supplied, all of these symptoms disappeared." We make this offer because Genuine Nuxated Iron contains true organic iron like the iron in your blood. So many people are deficient in iron who would surely be benefited by this remarkable remedy, that we recommend that you come right to Union Pharmacy and get your bottle of Nuxated Iron. Use it for two weeks, and note the improvement in your own case in strength, energy and endurance. If you are not more than surprised at the results, just bring the wrapper and we will promptly refund your money without question.

READY TO PUT UP STRONG PLEA FOR LAKE-ST. BRIDGE

West End Residents Alarmed by Activities of Lake-St. Friends

A series of strong arguments for a bridge at Lake-St. by a group of business men will be one of the features of the hearing to be conducted at 2:30 Friday afternoon in the city hall by the Wisconsin highway commission, according to rumors that are circulating in Appleton.

It is said that these men specifically favor the Lake-St. project in preference to a bridge at Cherry-st. and are working up a detailed plea for their cause.

Cherry-st. advocates have gotten an inkling of what is planned and are marshaling their forces to combat the talk for any location but the one at the west end. Several speakers are to be heard for the Cherry-st. bridge.

GET BRIDGE FIRST
Some students of the bridge question believe it unwise to lay too much stress on location at this hearing, although it is understood advocates for each point will voice their views. The purpose of the highway commission is understood to be rather to determine the need of a bridge here than the location. If it can be proved that Appleton's traffic problem is such that relief is needed, and if it can be shown particularly that tourist traffic will be benefited by a new structure, the commission may recommend the bridge appropriation. It is this recommendation the people should seek in their arguments, it is said, rather than that of location.

Where a bridge should be placed if the state is to help build one is a matter the highway commission will decide itself after a thorough survey, well-informed men declare, and the arguments made by the taxpayers here will be given due consideration. Many who intend to be present at the hearing will aim to make the highway commission see the need for better bridge facilities so as to induce a favorable decision before the legislature can repeal the law which will give Appleton the financial aid of both the county and state in this project.

"millions now living will never die" —Judge Rutherford

There is special significance in the troublous days through which the world has passed since 1914.

Out of these events will come greater developments, involving all nations and peoples.

The Bible accurately foretold present conditions.

Its prophecies regarding the future will be fulfilled with equal exactness.

The outstanding hope held forth in the Scriptures is the hope of eternal life, and the realization of this hope is now at hand.

It will be accompanied by all that the heart has longed for—health, peace and happiness.

God's purpose in giving man a revelation of His Plan was that mankind should use it, understand it, and appreciate the principles it sets forth.

An understanding of the Bible broadens one's view and inspires cheerfulness and optimism.

Prophets of old have described with glowing tongue the glories of the bright day that is now dawning. Hear the subject discussed at length.

Youth, beauty, social position, and sincere love—these were not sufficient to leave the affection of BELLYAMMY. But the decision to leave him came when his wife, LUCINDA, having tolerated a series of escapades and received his promise of reform, discovered him intoxicated and dancing with a woman of ill-repute in a Broadway saloon.

On the eve of her departure, Lucinda renewed an old acquaintance with FANNY LONTAINE, a woman who had been her husband's mistress in California. With them, she visited the New York studio of Anna Haley and takes a great interest in the screen life. The comes her departure to Chicago where she is visited by her lawyer, HARPOD WILLIS. Lucinda refuses to return to her husband.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I see you are beginning to formulate a philosophy of life. You will need it, my dear, if you mean to fight this out alone. Philosophy is good medicine only for lonely hearts. The others it merely hardens."

Lucinda eyed Willis sharply. "Bel has been to see you?"

"He looked me up," Willis admitted in mild surprise, "two days after your disappearance, thinking you might have communicated with me. Of course, I could tell him nothing. But how did you know?"

"That suggestion, the underlying thought that I might not be intending to fight out my fight alone—that originated with Bel, didn't it?"

"Well," Willis stammered, trying to smile disarmingly—"I confess—"

"It wasn't enough, of course, that I should have found Bel out for the dozerth time, there had to be a lover in my background to account for my leaving him! Did he mention any name?"

"Willis made a negative sign. "Belamy didn't imply—he merely said he was afraid—"

"It doesn't matter. What else did he have to say?"

"He seemed most remorseful—"

"I know how remorseful Bel can seem."

"He spoke of employing detectives to trace you."

"It wouldn't do Bel any good to see me, it would only irritate him to find I could hold out against a plea made in person."

"Willis sighed, and renounced—"If you must, you must, I presume; and I will do my best to serve your wishes, my dear. Only tell me how—"

"Why, naturally, I want to get the divorce over with as quickly and quietly as possible, with the minimum amount of public scandal."

"The laws of the State of Nevada are most liberal. But it would be necessary for you to establish a legal residence by living there six months."

"I suppose that's unavoidable."

"I will look up the most reputable firm of lawyers there, and recommend you to them. If you are in need of other advice, you need only write or telegraph, and if the emergency requires it, I will come out to confer with you."

"I hope I won't have to impose on your kindness to that extent."

"Willis blinked, removed the gold-rimmed pince-nez of his fading day, and rubbed the lenses with a silk handkerchief."

"And now," he pursued—"if you don't mind satisfying an inquisitive old man—I would very much like to know what you propose to do with your freedom, when you get it."

Lucinda jumped up and turned away with a quaver of desolation.

"Ah, I wish you hadn't asked me! That's what I'm trying all the time to forget—"

"I thought so."

"The emptiness to come! . . . What can a woman do to round out her life when she loses her husband and is fit for nothing but to be a wife?"

"She can find another husband, many do."

"Marry again?" A violet movement of Lucinda's hands abolished the thought. "Never that! I'm through with love for good and all."

"No doubt," agreed the student of law and life. "But are you sure that love is through with you?"

XIII

Willis left for New York on a late afternoon train; and when Lucinda had said good-bye to him at the station, she felt as if she had parted with her one real friend in all the world.

She applied for transportation and a drawing room through to Reno, but learned that the winter stampede of California tourists was in full westward swing. The best the agent could do was to book Lucinda through to San Francisco with a stopover herself in the California Hotel, leaving the next night, arranging for her to return to San Francisco to Reno, a trip of some eleven hours.

Returning to the hotel about five, she was approaching the elevators when, midway in the foyer, she stopped, lock still, transfixed by the sight of Bellyammy standing at the registry desk, in earnest consultation with one of the clerks.

Apparently Bellyammy had just learned what he wanted to know. Lucinda recognized the backward jerk of the head that was an unfailing sign of gratification in him, and saw him turn away from the desk. Galvanized, she hurried herself toward one of the elevator shafts, the gate to which was even then being closed.

When she entered her room the telephone was calling. She looked the door, and for as long as it continued to ring, which it did for upwards of five minutes. At length she gave it up as a bad job, and sank limply into a chair near the door, till a knock brought her to her feet in a flutter.

"Your bell m'm."

STILLMAN CASE TESTIMONY ENDS

New York — The hearing of evidence in the Stillman divorce case is all over. Mrs. Anne L. Stillman at a conference in Yonkers with her counsel John E. Mack, guardian for Baby Guy Stillman, whose legitimacy is questioned by the plaintiff, James A. Stillman, New York banker, decided Wednesday not to call any more witnesses. They had until Wednesday to let the plaintiff know whether they would reopen the case before the referee.

"We have decided to rest our case," said J. E. Brennan, chief of the defense counsel. "We will submit no more evidence."

The plaintiff agreed last week not to submit more evidence if the defense decided to call quits.

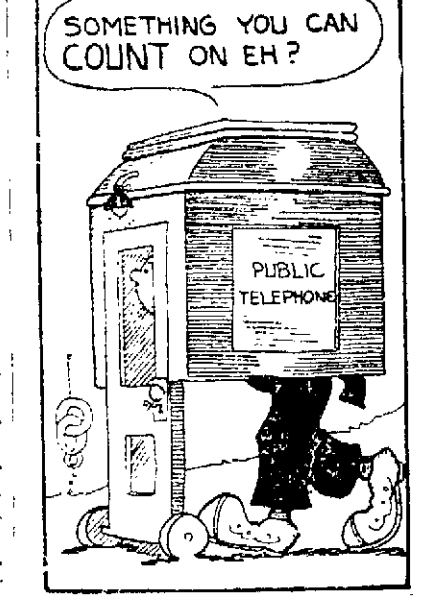

The lawyers now have 20 days to submit briefs and replying briefs, and then the case goes to Referee Gleason for decision.

AGREEMENT NEAR ON SYRIA MANDATE

Geneva — The United States and France are about to reach an agreement on the French mandate for Syria, according to information reaching the secretariat of the league of nations. It is understood the American government's approval is subject to certain conditions, which apparently will be met.

France is expected to ask the approval of the mandate by the council of the league at the special meeting to be held not later than July 15 at which the British mandate for Palestine is to be discussed.

CORN PROVIDED IN FAMINE AREA

Every District in Stricken Russia Has Grain for Adult Feeding

By Associated Press
London—Every district in the Russian famine area is now provided with corn for adult feeding, says a cable message received at the London office of the American Relief Administration. The last district to receive the food was Kazan, where the corn arrived April 2.

Thirty-two hundred horse teams are now distributing it to the outlying villages near Kazan, racing against time and the spring thaw, which will make the Kama river impassable. Spassk, one of the worst areas, lies across the Kama, and every effort is being made to get the food there in time.

If 25 percent of the American supplies reach their destination before the thaw finally sets in, then the adult program is assured. In the opinion of American Relief Administration officials, that amount will carry the people in the remote villages through until such time as the river navigation and the hardening of the roads makes them again accessible. The cities therefore are receiving their rations last, because they can always be reached from the railroads.

All American Relief Administration supplies are now moved in solid trains of 30 cars or more and are routed straight through to their ultimate destination. One hundred and seventy thousand tons of supplies left Russian ports for the interior during the month of March.

When the thaw prevents transportation in the outlying districts, the movement from the ports will still continue, but the cars will be routed to Rihinsk and Tzaritzin. Here the corn will be stored until the opening of river navigation makes its shipment by water possible.

LUTHERAN AID TO MEET ON FRIDAY

Appleton Branch May Invite State Convention to This City Next Year

Whether branch No. 1, Aid Association for Lutherans, should invite the state convention of the Wisconsin Federation of the association here next year is one of the important questions that will be decided at the monthly meeting to be held at 7:30 Friday evening in St. Paul school hall.

This will be the first meeting under the plan adopted at the April gathering, where it was voted to change the meeting day from Sunday to the third Friday of each month. A large attendance is expected in view of the change, although the usual notice could not be sent out in time.

The state federation is to hold its 1922 convention in Sheboygan next month, and the Appleton invitation will be extended at that time if the branch so decides.

The Rev. R. E. Ziesemer, whose address was postponed from last month, is expected to be the speaker Friday.

Butterick Patterns Help You Make Such Smart Garments

There Are Some More of Those Sun-Rain Umbrellas at $1.98 and $5.95

These two items have proved the most popular of all umbrella sales we have had in several years. First, they are great bargains at the price; and secondly, they fill a new demand this year. For warm days so many women are carrying a sun-rain umbrella instead of wearing a hat. The special offering at $5.95 is just the thing for this purpose and dozens will be sold every day next week to use in this way.

White Ball Tips and Ivory Grain Handles—$1.98

The sale price on this lot is actually LESS THAN HALF the price this quality has been selling for until now. They are made with strong paragon frames, in the fashionable eight-rib size. The covers are of excellent American taffeta, absolutely rain proof.

One of the big attractions of this lot after the quality of the covers, is the elaborateness of the handles. The fancy handles are of white "ivory" with colored panel decorations. Others are the smart sport style—a shaft of polished wood with leather wrist straps. All of these umbrellas are finished with white ball tips.

There is a fully supply of these umbrellas at the May Sale price of only $1.98.

At $5.95 are Beautiful Silk Sun-Rain Umbrellas

This lot includes only fine sun-rain umbrellas with covers of very good quality silk. There is a color range of navy, green, red, purple and brown. The paragon frames are the full eight rib size and they are finished with amber spoon tips and amber ferrule.

The handles are the very newest shapes of the season. Some are of carved wood, highly polished. These are finished with leather trimmings to match the cover of the umbrella. Others have a straight shaft of ivory, finished with a ring of amber. All of the handles are the newest styles for summer.

These sun rain umbrellas are entirely water proof and will give excellent wear. They are bargains in the May Sale at only $5.95.

Summery New Things and MAY SALES

Fill the Last of the Month With Events of Intense Interest to You

MAY OPENS THE SUMMER SEASON. With the advent of warm days, you will be interested in the newest fashions for those days. They are all here, the most original things our buyers have been able to find. In many cases we have picked up unusual things at very low prices—bargain prices for large purchases. These opportunities are included in the May Sales that fill the last days of May.

Every department of the store has a bargain for you. Every such offering is something you have been planning to get for summer anyway. The economy lies in picking it up from our bargain counters—they are all over the store. Some lots are too small to advertise, and will go to the earliest purchasers every day. Watch the May Sales, every day until the end of May.

Five Very Special Values

Here are just five of the bargains the white section has to offer in the May Sales:

PILLOW TUBING, 45 inches wide. This is a standard brand and an extra heavy weave. A quality to be depended upon for long wear. A special bargain at only 39c a yard.

PILLOW TUBING, 42 inches wide. This is another fine quality, a weave for those who wish fineness in thread rather than heavy weight. A special bargain at 39c a yard.

PETTIBONE'S SPECIAL CASES, these cases are the smaller 42 inch size, but they are the same quality as the special sheets and cases above. A special bargain at 37½c.

PETTIBONE'S SPECIAL SHEETS, size 81 by 90 inches. This is a fine fabric, woven of selected combed yarns. This is the full double bed size—A special bargain at $1.53.

PETTIBONE'S SPECIAL CASES, these cases are the same quality as the special sheet. They are nicely finished and the large 45 inch size—a special bargain at 39c.

Special Showings of New Summer Hats

Foretell a Brilliant Season of Graceful Shapes and Flowers

WIDE HATS droop gracefully above the summer gown—lovely large shapes of exquisite straws and crepes, adorned with softly tinted flowers. There are garden hats, such as you read about, of Japanese straw and laden with quaint field flowers. A dress hat may be quite large and the simple trimming may be one beautiful blossom. Many are the unusual conceits of summer hats.

Smaller shapes appear in the cleverest of sport hats. Some are white with really gorgeous embroideries of odd flowers. And those dashing felt hats are considered so very clever for sport wearing. They come in the soft garden tints of summer.

This week our millinery department offers a splendid array of the most enchanting summer hats. Modes for the younger miss and her matronly mother. They are summer's latest mandates.
